Norway, Sweden Now Known To Have Blocked British Aid for Finns

Foreign Minister Halvdan Reveals Refusal To Permit Passage of Troops as Requested

Oslo, March 14 (AP)—Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht declared in a broadcast tonight that Norway and Sweden had refused a last minute formal request of Britain and France to send troops through Scandinavia to Finland's aid because it was learned Germany would intervene.

The Norwegian foreign minister said the French and British issued feelers as early as March 2 but made no official request for passage of their troops until March 12, a few hours before Finland announced she had signed a peace with Russia.

Feared To Accept

Norway and Sweden refused the first suggestion of the Allies on March 4 because of fear that if Germany tried to intercept the Allied forces, Scandinavia would become a theatre of war.

One hundred thousand French and British troops would have been necessary to give Finland effective help, Koht declared, but would have taken so long to transport with their supplies that the effort would have been of no avail.

Finland made her first formal request for passage of Allied aid on March 11, he added, and Norway and Sweden rejected it March 12, the same day the British and French requests were submitted. The formal Allied request "came too late," Koht said, and their criticism now of Norway and Sweden is "unjust."

It is remarkable that "criticism comes from those who have done less for Finland than we," he added.

Norwegians Bitter

Rancor over the Altmark exchanges—when British sailors raided the German ship Altmark in a Norwegian fjord and liberated British captives—was revived when the foreign minister denined British and French charges that Norway was letting German submarines operate in Norwegian waters, or that Norway is transshipping imports to Germany.

"All accusations in this respect are untrue and we are forced to ask what is the intention of making them," Koht declared. "Only ill will can create them."

Swedish ore that is being transshipped to Germany, he said, is specifically allowed by the British-Norwegian trade agreement.

Postpone Hearings On Flood Control

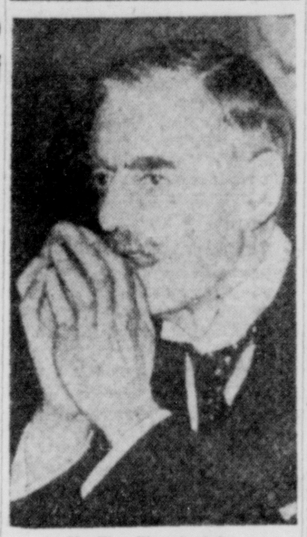

Washington, March 14 (AP) — Chairman Thomas (D-Okla) postponed today until next Tuesday hearings of Senate appropriations subcommittee in flood control.

The hearings, previously set for tomorrow, were called to consider arguments for and against proposals to increase the appropriation for fiscal 1941.

The war department civil functions appropriations as approved by the House left left the flood control appropriation at $70,000,000 as recommended by President Roosevelt.

Flood control advocates, who previously sought an appropriation of $133,000,000, as provided for the current fiscal year, said they would urge the Senate committee to recommend an increase of $25,000,000 over the budget figure.

Britain's Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain seems to have plenty on his mind in this latest picture. Finland's peace with Russia is considered a blow to the Allied cause.

Radcliffe Assails Bruce for Support Of Md. Income Tax

Asks Opponent If He Is in Favor of Similar Federal Tax Law

Baltimore, March 14 (AP)—Senator George L. Radcliffe (D-Md) charged tonight that Howard Bruce, his opponent for the Democratic senatorial nomination, was "seeking to divert the attention of the voters from the part he played in fastening upon them" the Maryland state income tax law.

Declaring that Bruce "has seen fit on numerous occasions to attack my legislative record and ability," Radcliffe inquired in a prepared statement:

"What legislative ability has Mr. Bruce shown?"

The Senator then added that Bruce, "as a dominating member" of the financial committee for the last legislative, " recommended the repeal of the tax on securities and to take the place of this tax and to raise additional income he advocated the adoption of the present Maryland income tax not along the lines of the federal income tax, where proper reductions are allowed and people taxed according to their ability to pay, but just the reverse."

Assails Tax Law

Radcliffe said the income tax law was unfair because it taxed "widows of modest means and poor people" with small fixed incomes six per cent, "while others more able to pay are, after the allowance of deductions, taxed only two and one-half per cent, and certain types of corporations are taxed only one and one-half per cent.

"Thus we have in this income tax law a concrete demonstration of the legislative skill and ability of Mr. Bruce.

"This law has met with universal condemnation because of its manifest unfairness and certainly leaves Mr. Bruce in a position where he

Men, Women and Children Leaving Their Lost Territory

By LYNN HEINZERLING

Helsinki, March 14 (AP)—A new army was on the march tonight in saddened Finland—an army of 100,000 men, women and children, forsaking their firesides in ceded territory to find strange homes within Finland's newly-shrunken frontiers.

By foot, in autos, wagons, and on trains they moved through the snow-clad country taking their pigs, horses and cattle with them. They carried what clothing and family heirlooms they could gather on short notice before their land is turned over to Russia.

Approximately 500,000 other persons are in refugee centers.

460,000 Need Homes

About 140,000 of them may return to their homes—what Russian bombs have left of them—but Finland must find new homes and new livelihoods some place in the rock-bound land for about 460,000.

Juho Koivisto, assistant minister of agriculture who is in charge of moving the people, said that no pressure had been brought to force families to leave the ceded areas, but that experience showed practically none of them wanted to live under Russian rule.

Most of those to be moved are from the regions north of Lake Ladoga since the ceded Karelian Isthmus was emptied of civilians and turned over to the army almost completely during the war.

The state has been paying the entire cost of feeding and sheltering refugees and now will stand the cost of moving them to permanent homes.

Koivisto said that an effort would be made to keep friends and neighbors with common traditions and customs together but that "very grave social problems" are ahead. The psychological shock of moving persons from places where their families had dwelt for generations is extremely serious, he pointed out.

The Finnish government feels that the refugees have a right to expect new property and new homes to make up for what is lost to Russia.

Some of the farming population from the isthmus and north of Lake Ladoga will be moved to western Finland near Vaasa. Fisherfolk of the isthmus will be settled along the Gulf of Bothnia, in southwest Finland.

Daladier Defends Policies Before Secret Session

Believed Closely Questioned by Some of His Opponents

By JOHN H. MARTIN

Paris, March 14. (AP)—Premier Daladier spent three hours defending his war policies today before a secret Senate session while an insistent press demanded that the Allies "find a battlefield—and make war" against all their enemies."

The premier called the secret session suddenly to thrash out the whole question of British-French strategy after criticism of Allied inaction and growing clamor for an exposition of the Western powers' role in the Finnish-Russia war.

Four senators headed by Former Premier Pierre Laval, sometimes mentioned as a possible successor to Daladier, fired questions at the government chieftain on his conduct of the war of siege and on Finland's capitulation to Russia, regarded by critical senators as a distinct diplomatic defeat for the Allies.

The secret session will continue tomorrow afternoon and a vote is expected in a public meeting late in the day.

Daladier hurried to the Senate meeting after meeting U. S. Under-Secretary of State Sumner Wells on the latter's arrival from London. He received from Welles a letter from President Roosevelt which was not delivered on the previous visit of the president's fact-finding emissary.

The American embassy said the letter was one of personal greeting from Mr. Roosevelt and did not concern the international situation as it has developed since Welles's arrival in Europe.

Welles left Paris tonight by train for Rome. He will sail for home from Italy.

Germany Obtains Russian Pledge Reds Will Spare Rumania from Invasion

Nazi Move May Mean Balkan Nation Will Desert British-French Allies Through Trade Treaty

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, March 14 (AP)—Germany, anxious to avoid a southeastern battlefront and determined to strengthen her economic ties with the Balkan nations, has obtained from Soviet Russia definite pledge to spare Rumania, come what may, an extremely well-informed, non-official informant told the Associated Press today.

The pledge, which probably will be documented soon, may enable Nazi diplomats to wean Rumania away from the French-British Allies and steer her into a non-aggression pact with Russia.

There were unmistakable evidences that negotiations of some sort were in progress between Moscow and Bucharest. German, Russian and Rumanian sources denied that the secret negotiations are centered here, but there were indications that Berlin is, at least, involved to some degree.

One interesting factor is the presence of a Rumanian general in Berlin. Ostensibly he is here to confer on extention of the German-Rumanian trade treaty to Germany's Bohemia-Moravia protectorate, but why a military envoy should do this has not been explained.

Bucharest sources say a Rumanian commission of high army officers is in Berlin.

"Something in the Wind"

German officials and spokesmen at the Rumanian legation here have declined to comment on the situation. Other well-informed persons, however, hint that something is in the wind, and one went so far as to say today the current week would "furnish political foundations for Germany's military victory."

The Rumanian question, this informant said, was a factor in the situation.

The German press, reflecting the trend of Nazi diplomacy, used the new Finnish-Russian peace as a tool with which to hammer away at the small neutral nations of southeastern Europe, urging them to cut loose from the Allies while they can.

Accuse Britain, France

Charging that Britain and France "used" the Czeche, Poles and Finns "through empty promises of aid," Adolf Hitler's Volkischer Beobachter advised small countries to examine, in their own interests, the difference between the Russian-Finnish peace terms and Russia's original demands upon Finland.

"Finland could have had peace with Soviet Russia much more cheaply," the Volkischer Beobachter said. "Now, however, it has learned the same lesson" (which Czecho-Slovakia and Poland had to learn.)

"We are eager," the newspaper went on, "to see whether other lands finally will take the bitter lesson to heart."

Nachtausgabe, while not speaking with the same authority as the Volkischer Beobachter, put the same thought even more bluntly

Warns Small Nations

"Whoever has depended upon Britain," it said, "must basically revise his political calculations. That is the fate of Finland. That is also the fate of the northern states which have just escaped with a whole skin out of a decades-long, falsely oriented foreign policy. Many other neutral states have just time enough to reflect."

Speculation of foreign diplomats concerning the situation in the Balkans was heightened by messages from Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop rescinding their invitations to a German academy luncheon at which Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat of the ministry of economics is to speak on Rumania.

The foreign minister explained: "Herr State Councillor Wohlthat's

CALLS OUT TROOPS

Gov. Leon Phillips

Oklahoma's National Guard was ordered by Gov. Leon Phillips to halt completion of the $20,000,000 hydroelectric dam on the Grand River near Vinita, which he terms an invasion of Oklahoma's rights by the federal government.

Work on Gigantic Dam Delayed by Order of Court

Judge Thomas Grants Plea of Gov. Phillips of Oklahoma

Disney, Okla., March 14 (AP)—A district court order restraining the Grand River Dam authority from completing the $20,000,000 dam was issued today at the request of Gov. Leon C. Phillips, who already had established martial law for the same purpose.

The order was issued a few hours after the dam Authority had instructed the general contractor, the Massman Construction Co., to "take such steps or proceedings as may seem necessary to insure uninterrupted continuance of construction work."

Judge W. M. Thomas at Miami granted a temporary order, on application of Asst. Atty. Gen. Randell S. Cobb, restraining the dam authority and other defendants "from closing or constructing the (unfinished) arch No. 6, of the dam x x x."

Guardsmen on Duty

Meanwhile, a few national guard officers kept watch over the mile-long concrete and steel structure where they assumed control nearly twenty-four hours earlier.

Evidently in anticipation of Governor Phillips' obtaining the restraining order, the G. R. D. A., meeting at Vinita, instructed its chief counsel, R. L. Davidson, to "resist the action with every means on behalf of, and in the name of, the Authority.

The Authority declared:

"It is incumbent upon Massman and its sureties to protect the Grand River Dam Authority from unlawful or illegal interference with completion of the contract."

The contract sets a March 31 deadline.

Demand Federal Guarantee

The state's petition for the restrainer stated that unless the work was halted the floodgates would be closed in a few days and the river's backwash would cover roads and bridges in Ottawa, Mayes and Delaware counties. Governor Phillips contends payment for damages

Witness Describes Big Payments by Coster-Musica to Rival Politicians

New York, March 14 (AP)—Payments made on the Q. T. by the late F. Donald Coster-Musica to a pair of rival Connecticut politicians—in one case from a hidden "slush fund" and in the other case charged off to "advertising" and "legal" expense—were described today by a witness in federal court.

This "slush fund," said George Dietrich-Musica, "covered a multitude of sins" and through it altogether $42,000 of the funds of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., was disbursed. It was a "pink slip" system, he declared, and one of the first slips—amount not mentioned—was made out to Harry E. MacKenzie, formerly a Republican leader in Connecticut.

On the other side of the picture, Dietrich-Musica swore, was Archibald McNeil, former Connecticut Democratic National Committeeman. He said McNeil was secretly

Triple Alliance Support Growing In Three Nations

Sweden, Norway and Finland Seem Likely To Get Together

Stockholm, March 14 (AP)—Support for a defensive alliance among Sweden, Norway and Finland grew today out of the ashes of the Russian-Finnish conflict which left powerful Russia strategically poised over all three.

Official statements in Stockholm, Oslo and Helsinki drew the issue to the fore following the Russian-dictated peace, the Swedish foreign office and Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht making almost identical announcements that their countries were considering the possibility of such an alliance.

Finland's president, Kyosti Kallio, described a defensive alliance as an "inescapable necessity."

Traditionally neutral Norway and Sweden have become distinctly conscious of possible future dangers as a result of the Finnish peace treaty.

Action Expected

Opposition is voiced to any alliance or definite commitment binding Sweden and Norway to give Finland direct military aid but some form of precautionary action generally is expected.

In both Sweden and Norway anxiety is felt that Finland might within a few months go the way of Czecho-Slovakia, bringing a potential Russian threat to the borders of the northern kingdoms.

With Finland's attitude clearcut regarding the desire for a pact, the burden of the decision appeared to rest in Stockholm and Oslo, with a formal conference regarded probable in the near future.

The main question tonight seemed to be: will the three countries simply ignore or can they circumvent article three of the Russian-Finnish peace treaty with its prohibition of alliances directed against either contracting party?

Seek To Clarify Treaty

Unconfirmed reports circulated that Sweden had asked Moscow for clarification of certain points of the treaty, especially the provisions for Russian transport privileges across Finland. Informed quarters here do not believe these privileges—regarded here as a potential threat to Sweden — were included in the original demands which Sweden passed on to Finland.

To both Sweden and Norway the question of an alliance suggests an almost revolutionary departure from their established policies of independent action and complete neutrality.

Roosevelt Said To Have Settled California Row

President Said To Have Paved Way for "Harmony Slate"

Washington, March 14 (AP) — A "harmony slate" of Roosevelt third-term delegates was agreed upon by quarreling Democratic factions in California today after a transcontinental peace move which was reported to have the sanction of President Roosevelt himself.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes had journeyed from Washington to the west coast in what was said to be an attempt to end differences which third termers feared might spell a victory for Vice President Garner in the California presidential primary May 7.

There had been talk that two third-term slates might be entered by factions headed respectively by Gov. Culbert L. Olson and former Senator William Gibbs McAdoo. But today Olson announced that the harmony slate had been agreed upon and that both he and McAdoo would be on it.

There were reports in usually reliable sources on capitol hill that Ickes, ardent advocate of a third term, had been suggested by the White House as an intermediary and acted with "full authority."

Some Democrats in the House declared that the peace pact virtually assured the chief executive of California's forty-four votes in the Democratic National Convention. Rep. Buck (D-Calif), who had been striving to prevent the entry of more than one Roosevelt slate, said it was "certain" that the harmony delegates would triumph over those pledged ot Garner.

In San Francisco, Ickes denied having conversed with the president concerning his trip west, said its purpose was not politics. But he admitted, prior to a conference

Amendment Passed by Senate May Result in Defeat, Supporters Say

Opponents Pleased with Success of Plan To Limit What Persons or Corporations May Give

Washington, March 14 (AP) — In as striking a display of razzle-dazzle as the Senate has seen in years, foes of the Hatch "anti-politics" bill put that measure in jeopardy today by amending it to prohibit campaign contributions of more than $5,000 from any person or corporation.

Some supporters of the measure ruefully acknowledged that the coup had seriously lessened its chances of passage at this time, when campaign chests are being stocked up for the political wars just ahead.

Opponents of Bill Pleased

Opponents of the Hatch bill, under which the existing ban on political activity by federal workers would be extended to an army of state workers paid with U. S. funds, almost chortled when the $5,000 campaign fund restriction was approved, forty to thirty-eight.

Senator Hatch (D-NM), author of the bill voted against the amendment. He said its real purpose "was to antagonize Republicans who have been supporting my bill," but minority Leader McNary (R-Ore) said Republicans would continue to support the legislation despite the amendment.

The subject of campaign contributions has been the center of recent controversy between Democratic and Republican party leaders, Democratic Chairman James A. Farley cited several large contributions to the 1936 Republican campaign, while Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton replied that the largest single contribution, $104,500, was made to the Democratic campaign by Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man.

The amendment would place an absolute $5,000 top on the total contributions that could be made by any individual or corporation in a single year. Contributions above that figure would be "pernicious political activity" and would be punishable by fines of at least $5,000 and prison terms of at least five years.

Supreme Soviet Called To Meet To Ratify Pact

Russian Parliament To Convene in Moscow on March 29

Moscow, March 15 (Friday (AP) — The presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U. S. S. R., decided today to convoke the sixth session of the Supreme Soviet on March 29, in Moscow.

Although it did not give the reason for the session, the Supreme Soviet undoubtedly will meet to approve the Russo-Finish peace treaty, to form a new republic in the ceded territory of Finland and to receive new members to be elected in the "western Ukraine" — part of Poland — on March 24.

The last session of the Supreme Soviet, which is Russia's parliament, was held last November, while Finnish delegates engaged in futile negotiation of Russia's first demands were in Moscow. On the 30th of November, Russia invaded Finland.

Seizure of Poland Approved

At the November session of the Soviet, the members unanimously approved the incorporation of the western Ukraine and western White Russia — those parts of Poland occupied by the Red army — into the Soviet union.

The treaty of peace which ended the undeclared war between Russia and Finland was presented today to Russian newspapers as saving northern Europe from alleged "plots" to embroil it in conflict.

The government newspaper Izvestia asserted editorially that the pact "deals a crushing blow to far-reaching plans of war-mongers in north Europe."

In the same vein Komsomolskaya Pravda declared the accord "will

Former Bank Cashier Gets 18 Months in Pen

Baltimore, March 14. (AP)—William Edgar Seipp, former assistant secretary-cashier of the County Trust Company at Upper Marlboro, Md., pleaded guilty today to embazzeling $16,000 and was sentenced to eighteen months in prison.

The sentence, to be served in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., was imposed by Judge W. Calvin Chesnut in United States District Court.

Seipp told the judge he resorted to misuse of the bank's funds to pay doctor and hospital bills for his wife and three children.

Seipp disappeared from the bank Feb. 8, 1937, and was not heard of again until he surrendered to the United States marshal at Seattle, Wash.

Britain and France Plan Heavy Purchases of Explosives in U. S.

Allied Missions Will Spend More Than $100,000,000 Here

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

Washington, March 14 (AP) — A $1,427,000 British-French loan to expand American powder-manufacturing facilities showed today that the Allies are looking to this country for heavy supplies of explosives.

Authoritative sources reported that Allied purchasing missions have indicated the intention of expending well beyond $100,000,000 in the United States for powder and shells and expanded plants to produce these munitions.

The $1,427,000 loan was made to the Atlas Powder Company, Wilmington, Del., to finance construction of plants to turn out TNT, high explosive used in shells. This was revealed in a report to the SEC.

Want Ample Reserves

It was viewed by munitions experts familiar with the negotiations as only an initial move toward assuring ample reserves for the British and French armies in the event heavy fighting drains their existing stores.

One projected deal, known to be in process of negotiation, involves construction of a $25,000,000 plant to turn out an initial $25,000,000 powder order for France.

Several manufacturers who have been approached with prospective orders have been quietly looking for sites for new plants. Sites have been inspected in southern Indiana

Democrats in Northeast States Favor Third Term for Roosevelt

Will Support Other Candidates only If He Refuses To Run

By ALEX SINGLETON

Boston, March 14 (AP)—If there's a third-term band wagon, then the Democrats of the nation's northeast corner probably will be riding on the front seat, for already they have indicated their intention of considering other White House aspirants only if President Roosevelt withdraws finally and definitely.

New England Republicans, on the other hand, haven't been thumbing rides this presidential year in any of the leading candidates' carts. G. O. P. leaders in the six states, thus far have kept their party followers well in line. They have posted a welcome sign for visiting hopefuls, but have made it equally plain that the section's delegations should go to the convention unpledged.

New Hampshire Shows Trend

New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary this week emphasized the trend of both parties. The granite state democrats gave President Roosevelt their eight convention votes by an overwhelming margin, passing up both anti-third-term candidates and pledges of Vice President Garner and Postmaster General James A. Farley. Its Republicans picked an unpledged delegation, but one willing to go along with the "favorite son" candidacy of Senator Styles Bridges.

The outcome was interpreted in some quarters as the official birth

Prentis Sees New Deal As Preventing Return Of Prosperity to U. S.

President of Manufacturers' Association Deplores Confusion and Uncertainty

Pittsburgh, March 14 (AP)—H. W. Prentis, Jr., of Lancaster, Pa., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, told 500 industrialists from the Ohio-West Virginia-Pennsylvania area tonight industry can take great strides toward economic rpecovery, if there is an end to "further experiment, confusion and uncertainty."

Prentis, president of the Armstrong Cork Company, discussing what he termed the tendency of government to absorb private enterprise, said:

"When government ceases to be merely an umpire and with the full strength of its dominating authority steps into the game itself, many a player concludes his chances to win are so greatly diminished: a seat on the sidelines is preferable."

NRA Didn't Stay Dead

Prentis asserted the belief the tristate area now would have been out of the "economic fog" if NRA had been permitted to remain dead.

"But it (NRA) would not stay dead," he continued and now we have:

"The Walsh-Healey Act under which the secretary of labor is empowered to tell industry how to run its business if it would participate in government contracts.

"The Bituminous Coal Act, clearly designed to regiment that great industry.

"The Wagner Act and its National Labor Relations board, which we were assured would bring peace to industry. Instead x x x the administration of the present law has brought strife, controversy and confusion.

Industry Hamstring

"The fair labor standards act—wages and hours—which (admirable though its objective may be) further hamstrings much legitimate activity in industry and commerce.

"The Robinson-Patman act which attempts to regiment the countless millions of sales transactions that occur in America every day."

With all of these "so-called little NRA's" Prentis said unemployment remains an unsolved problem.

25 Laborers Die On Crossing in State of Texas

Bodies Widely Scattered when Train Hits Loaded Truck

McAllen, Tex., March 14 (AP)—The worst crossing crash in Texas history killed twenty-five Mexican laborers and injured seventeen today. A Missouri Pacific passenger train smashed broadside into a truck carrying them to work in a vegetable field.

Some of the victims were decapitated. Bodies were scattered along the track for 600 yards.

The truck, its exploding gasoline tank wrapping it in flame, stuck fast to the engine's cowcatcher until the train was stopped.

The tracks parallel the main valley highway, into which runs the road on which the truck was traveling.

One of the victims was caught under the engine's firebox and was burned. Witnesses said the clothes of other victims could be seen burning along the tracks.

Mary Ann Wall, who works in an office near the scene, related:

"When I looked x x x I tried to yell but I couldn't say a thing.

"Then my boss, Albert Jensen, ran out on the loading platform (of a citrus packing plant) and yelled back to me to call all the ambulances. I made the calls and when I looked out the window again bodies were piled up all along the tracks.

"It's the most horrible thing I have ever seen."

John Boeye and a companion, riding on the highway, saw the crash.

Boeye said: "I saw a big cloud of dust when the train reached the crossing. We rushed up and bodies were rolling around on the ground."

Espiridion Vera, 21, a survivor, was riding in the rear of the truck when he heard the train. He jumped just before the engine hit and saw bodies thrown from the vehicle in every direction.

Baltimore Police Have Laugh on Md. State Legislature

Eighteen Civilian Clerks Fail To Excel 24 Cops as Claimed

Annapolis, Md., March 14 (AP) — Baltimore police force had the laugh on the state legislature today — the legislature's contention that eighteen civilian clerks could do the work of twenty-four officers assigned to the old traffic court was disproved.

The legislature created the new traffic court, and directed that eighteen civilians handle the work done by twenty-four officer-clerks.

Today Chief Judge Robert France appeared before the legislative council and his prime recommendation for 1941 legislation affecting the court was that five clerks be added to his staff, bringing it withing one of the "old days" total.

Big Increase in Case

Judge France contended there was a twelve per cent increase in cases handled since the new court took over, and pointed to a $45,720 increase in revenues since the court started last May 1.

He also suggested some form of merit system and retirement program be worked out for court employees.

Judge France's claim that his court was understaffed climaxed a parade of state officials before the legislative council, each protesting that present state appropriations limited efficiency of the services under his direction.

George H. Preston, director of mental hygitne, said the extremely low wages paid state insane hospital employees posed a serious problem in personnel management. The personnel turnover at Spring Grove runs from 64-75 per cent annually, and the $40-a-month attendants do not remain long enough to be properly trained.

Hospital Staff Disrupted

Dr. Preston said routines at the hospital were disrupted because the professional staff is regularly decimated by doctors leaving to accept higher paid posts. First year psychiatrists are paid $1,200 in Maryland, and are quickly snapped up by states paying twice as much.

The clinical director at Spring Grove, drawing $3,200 annually, was lured away by a three-year contract at $5,200 offered by Colorado.

Dr. Preston also asked that accident indemnity protection be extended to state hospital attendants and expansion of present facilities to care for juvenile delinquents of subnormal mentality.

become an important link in the system destined to safeguard Europe's north and east from the flame of the second imperialist war."

Independence Remains

Izvestia contended that "neither in letter nor in spirit does the treaty affect to the slightest extent the independence and sovereign rights of the republic of Finland, the independence which she received from the Soviet state twenty-two years ago."

Rather, it said, the pact "represents a real triumph for the peace policy of the Soviet union

Russia's "wise peace policy," it said, "broke and demolished plots against neutral countries" which now have "heaved a sigh of relief. The direct menace to their independence and the direct menace of their being drawn into war now is over."

For Russia herself, the peace treaty "lays the foundation for development of stable and good neighborly relations" between Finland and Russia, Izvestia said.

ought to be the last one to criticize the legislative ability of anybody."

Hits Out at Bruce

The law, Radcliffe declared, "is so flagrantly unjust" in some provisions that many of its sponsors admit it must be changed.

"Driven to desperation by the storm of protest and resentment which the enforcement of the law has brought about, realizing his responsibility for it, and being utterly unable to find any real issues with which to fight me, he is simply seeking to divert the attention of the voters from the part he played in fastening upon them this unwise piece of legislation.

"I think in fairness to the taxpaying citizens of Maryland that Mr. Bruce should at this time answer this question:

"If you should be so fortunate as to be nominated and elected to the Senate, would you work as hard for the passage of a similar federal income tax law as you did for the one which you helped impose upon the people of Maryland?"

Democrats

of a "draft-Roosevelt" movement, inasmuch as delegates pledged to the president's renomination under New Hampshire law must continue to vote for him until they receive a formal release.

Farley's Plans a Mystery

Yet New England's Democratic preference for the president had been made plain much earlier in a series of developments which pointed toward a general sectional choice of Farley for standard bearer provided Mr. Roosevelt left the field clear.

The first of those developments came when the entry of the Democratic National Committee chairman into the Massachusetts primary. Initial belief that he was "in on his own" and perhaps had been given a "go ahead" signal by the "chief" was somewhat beclouded by subsequent developments.

Only a few days after Farley had given him the power of attorney required by Massachusetts law to enter a slate of delegates in his behalf, Massachusetts Democratic Committee Chairman William Burke said that he had named delegates in the belief that the president would not be a candidate, but that if he was, he would receive the support of "Mr. Farley and the Democratic party as a whole."

Farley recently accepted an invitation to keynote the Maine Democratic convention March 27, stirring up speculation on the possibility he might make his position in the Democratic contest clear at that time.

He said a few weeks ago at Miami that he considered the "turning point" in the 1932 Roosevelt campaign came after Maine Democrats pledged their delegates to President Roosevelt, adding that he was "able to use that as a lever in swinging Iowa."

Maine State Democratic Committee Chairman Fred H. Lancaster expressed personal preference for Farley provided the president was not a candidate.

A similar statement came from Connecticut National Committeeman David E. Fitzgerald. Young Democrats of Connecticut, through their executive committee, endorsed the president. In New Hamshire, three Farley pledged candidates ran second to the Roosevelt slate. Spokesmen for Rhode Island's Washington delegation have declared that the president was their first choice, but that Farley would be "acceptable."

A cagey silence has prevailed in Republican ranks. To New England to look over the field have come District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, Senator Taft of Ohio, Former Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider of Iowa and Frank Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., publisher.

But although they have been given cordial greetings, they apparently have received few or no promises of convention support. Perhaps the best summary of the New England G.O.P. attitude toward the visitors is found in the words with which governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts has greeted several of them—

"New England is not without its sons who merit high office, therefore it will consider well who it chooses among those to keep the nation on its true course to its high destiny."

Senator Bridges and House Minority Leader Joseph Martin of Massachusetts have gained the widest attention of the section's "sons"—Bridges as an "available" candidate who has campaigned for the honor for a year, and Martin as a potential 'darkhorse" aspirant.

address may be delivered only before German nationals."

On the home front a decree by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Germany's economic dictator, called upon the German people to make Hitler a "gift of old metal" on his fifty-first birthday, April 20.

The nation was told that a great contribution of metals to furnish material for Germany's war industries would be the present the Fuehrer would appreciate most.

Thelma Changed Underwear in Public, Witness Says, Opposing Custody Suit

New York, March 14. (AP)—Thelma Bowman Spear, unwed mother of the six-year old son of Ludwig Lewisohn, the author, was declared today by a state supreme court witness to have been so eccentric as to try on underwear in a Vermont store before a pop-eyed group of men and women.

Testifying in the writer's suit for complete custody of the boy, Saul Spiro of Pittsburgh, Pa., said the underwear incident occurred in the store of his father-in-law, Morris Mazel, in Burlington, Vt.

Spiro, who identified himself as supervisor of all Jewish religious schools in southwestern Pennsylvania, declared that during the liaison of Miss Spear and Lewisohn he had urged them to marry but that the woman, a concert singer, had thus disposed of that suggestion:

"I want to be a free agent and marry any millionaire who comes along the way."

Too, the witness said, Miss Spear had once told him:

"I'm willing to become a courtesan if I can get the money for it."

While Miss Spear sat frequently shaking her blond head, Spiro made these other assertions:

That when the body of a kidnaped New Rochelle, N. Y., boy was found about two years ago, Miss Spear had said: "I wish this happened to my brat; then I would be free".

That while she was living in Burlington and Lewisohn was away on his lecture tours she would sometimes buy five or six bottles of liquor at a time, and would disappear and have pre-dated letters mailed to the author "to give the impression she was taking care of the baby";

That she used such language as could not be repeated "in front of the judge", and that the child would inquire: "Mama says so; why should I?"

When, in early February, Lewisohn was being married in Baltimore to a Rochester, N. Y., newspaper woman, Miss Spear rushed into the synagogue crying, "I have been his wife, his muse, his soul," but she failed to halt the ceremony. The boy, James Elias Lewisohn is now in a school at Lakewood, N. J.

Separate Trials Asked for Two in Pilchard Slaying

Judge Promises Decision when Trial Date Is Announced

Towson, Md., March 14 (AP)—Separate trials for two negroes charged with murdering an Eastern Shore farmer and attacking his wife were sought today by one defense attorney at the men's arraignment in Baltimore County Circuit Court.

Chief Judge Scott Offut said a decision on the motion, made by William H. Price of Snow Hill, court-appointed attorney for Charles Manuel, would be given when the trial date was set.

Manuel, 18, and Arthur Collick, 28, were indicted jointly for murder, armed robbery and assault with intent to kill Mrs. Annie Pilchard, whose husband was slain. Both pleaded innocent.

The husband, Harvey Pilchard, 61, a farmer of Stockton, was killed and his wife was criminally attacked last month. The attack charge was brought only against Collick.

Price said Manuel's would be jeopardized in a joint trial.

Judge Offut said the trial date depended upon the condition of Mrs. Pilchard, who is now in a hospital at Wilmington, Del. She was shot in the back after her husband was slain by a blast from a shotgun.

A heavy detail of county police and deputy sheriffs led Collick and Manuel into the courtroom and a dozen officers were scattered about the room during the hearing. Approximately seventy-five spectators also attended.

The negroes were brought here yesterday from Bel Air, where they had been held for safekeeping after their arrest.

Baltimore Young Man Shot While Defending His Companion

Baltimore, March 14 (AP)—Police combed the northern section of the city today for a young bandit trio who shot and killed John K. Waterbury, 25-year-old gas company engineer, and injured his companion in a "Lover's Lane" holdup.

Two houses in the Hampden section and a stolen automobile left on a vacant lot by three white men were being watched. Police said they believed the trio was the same gang that has been terrorizing couples parked on nearby county roads.

Waterbury, a native of Metuchen, N. J., was shot in the heart last night while struggling with the men who accosted him as he sat in his parked automobile with Miss Phyllis Taylor, 24-year-old stenographer, on a lonely suburban road.

Girl Hit Over the Head

Miss Taylor, whom Waterbury was trying to protect after the men took their money, two rings and a watch, was hit over the head with a pistol. She was confined to her home today under the care of a physician.

Detective Captain John A. Cooney said the shooting, which climaxed a recent wave of armed robberies, occurred just after the three bandits had held up another victim, George Seward, 21.

While one of the men kept a pistol trained on Seward, the other two approached Waterbury's car. Waterbury objected when one of the men threatened Miss Taylor. He got out of the car and fought, then was felled by a bullet in the heart.

Bandits Flee on Foot

Miss Taylor screamed and blew the horn. One of the men, who had started to run, returned and cracked her over the head with his pistol. Then they fled on foot.

Miss Taylor, a bad gash in her head and a bruise on her cheek, ran down the road and was picked up by Miss Kay Blumson and Sol Arons, who notified police.

Seward described the bandits as between 18 and 23 years old and of medium height. All were bareheaded and dressed in dark clothes. Their faces were masked with handkerchiefs.

Student's Sanity In Murder Case Is Problem for Jury

Death Penalty Asked by Prosecutor of John McCormick

Cleveland, March 14 (AP) — reporting it was "tired," the jury deliberating the fate of John L. McCormick, 21-year-old University of Pittsburgh senior tried for first degree murder, was locked up at 10:30 p. m., after deliberating nine hours.

Cleveland, March 14 (AP) — Was John L. McCormick, 21-year-old University of Pittsburgh senior sane at the time he shot and killed a special policeman during a holdup?

If sane, is he guilty of first-degree murder?

If sane and guilty as charged, should he be sentenced to death?

A jury of nine women and three men debated these questions tonight as it considered evidence in the trial of young McCormick, accused in the slaying of Theodore Nichols while holding up Western Union's main office here last Jan. 8.

The jury started deliberations at 3:25 p. m., today, after Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan, describing McCormick as a "boy born with a silver spoon,' 'asked the death penalty.

Counsel for McCormick, who pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, asked acquittal, but pleaded for mercy in event the jury voted for conviction.

Son of well-to-do Pittsburgh parents, McCormick testified intense family arguments led him to rob Western Union offices at Fairmont, W. Va., and East Liverpool, O., and then commit the fatal holdup here.

He said his parents regarded him as "an obstruction in their domestic lives."

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Woods McCormick, admitted on the witness stand they moved from their home Dec. 16 and went to a hotel after an argument with their son.

"I was just as stubborn and bullheaded as John's mother was," testified the father, 68, a retired real estate dealer.

Two alienists testified the youth was insane when he killed Nichols, and the state called four who said he was sane.

Plane Passenger Drowns After Dramatic Battle Above New York Harbor

Attacks Pilot with Pliers and Forces Him To Come Down in Water Near Statue of Liberty

Jersey City, N. J., March 14. (AP)—A man tentatively identified as a former theatrical publicity writer today found in spectacular manner the death which police said he sought, when a plane fell into New York harbor following a dramatic battle between passenger and pilot a half mile up.

Pilot Joseph Rosemarin, 38, Brooklyn, was rescued but New York harbor and local police worked into the night under floodlights, grauupping for the body of the passenger where the plane fell near the Statue of Liberty.

A friend of the pilot, Attorney Mortimer Rabson of New York City, and a woman told police the missing man was apparently Emanuel Eisenberg, 35, of New York City. Rabson said Eisenberg resigned last year as press agent for the Group theater in New York and went to Mexico to write a book. He said he had seen the man in New York recently.

Miss Ruth Eisenberg telephoned that her cousin Emanuel had gone up with a pilot named Rosemarin.

Death Pronounced Suicide

After hearing Rosemarin's graphic story of the struggle in the skies at Jersey City medical center and questioning Rabson, Police Inspector Henry Gautier said tersely:

"It is simply a case of suicide."

Rosemarin was treated for shock.

The story Rosemarin told Police Captain Fred Drewen was that of a man who became terror-stricken and "leaned over and hit me over the head with pliers."

Knocked Him Unconscious

"I struck back and knocked him unconscious," Rosemarin said. "I was unable to control the plane and had to land."

The pilot, an instructor for a flying school at Floyd Bennett airport in Brooklyn, said the man went to the field this morning.

"He went to the airport and said that I had sent him," Mortimer Rabson of New York City, an attorney friend of Rosemarin said after talking to the pilot. "He said he wanted to take a lesson. They went up to about 2,000 feet.

"The other man said he would like to see New York. Joe said he had gone up only to give instructions but added 'I'll fly you over the edge of Brooklyn and you can see New York from there.'

"Flying over Prospect Park (in Brooklyn), the plane suddenly went into the start of an outside loop, and began making a dive.

"Joe grabbed his stick and was righting the plane. The other man was screaming. Then the plane went down again."

Passenger Caused Dive

This indicated, Rabson said, that the passenger had pushed forward his "stick" on the dual-control plane.

"Joe attempted to force the ship towards Governor's Island because he didn't want it to drop in an inhabited area."

Rabson added that Rosemarin then continued in an "incoherent" manner to tell "something about grabbing a pair of pliers in an effort to hit the other man."

When the land plane hit the water it began to settle, Rosemarin told Captain Drewen. He pulled himself out of the cabin and straddled the fuselage, from where he was picked up within a few minutes by a tug. The other man was still in the cabin.

Captain Harry Pahlke of the lighter Ruth told police he saw something that looked like a body fall into the water as he began raising the plane with a boom.

OGPU Active Here, Rep. Dies Asserts

Texan Hints "People in Government Circles" Are Involved

Washington, March 14 (AP)—Hinting that unnamed "people in government circles" were involved, Chairman Dies (D-Tex) said today that his committee on unAmerican activities had uncovered a "lead" on far flung Soviet secret police operations in the United States and would hear testimony soon from "the head of the OGPU" in this country.

The Texan declined to give out the witness' name or tell how the committee got in touch with him. It was indicated, however, that the alleged Russian agent had been arrested by the FBI in connection with its investigation of espionage.

(Before Dies left Florida, the Miami Herald said it had learned that an important Russian spy had been arrested near Washington.)

"The purpose of this hearing," Dies sadi, "is to expose the manner in which the OGPU (Russian secret police) operates in the United States."

He said he expected the witness would "give the picture" for this country of spy operations similar to those described to the committee last year by General Walter G. Krivitsky who told the committee that he was a former Soviet secret police chief for Western Europe.

Krivitsky related that Russia had a net of spies and secret police throughout Europe. These agents, he declared, not only conducted espionage, but had, on occasion, kidnaped and slain persons considered anti-Stalinites.

Krivitsky said that Moscow "undoubtedly" had many agents in the United States, some even in the army and navy.

rolling stock, every truck and auto has been sent to southeastern Finland, especially the heavily-populated Sortvala district, to bring out the unhappy Finns before that territory is turned over to Moscow.

From its shell-scarred positions on the isthmus and north of Ladoga the Finnish army must retreat at a rate of about four miles a day, starting tomorrow and completing the cession by April 10. Each sector has a deadline for being yielded.

The need for every transport vehicle is so acute that the government declines to let newspapermen visit the area for the present.

Informed Helsinki circles said they saw nothing in Article three of the Moscow peace treaty which would prohibit a defensive alliance with Sweden and Norway as urged today by President Kyosti Kallio in a broadcast speech. The article pledges that no alliances directed against one signatory may be entered into by the other.

These Helsinki circles said a Scandinavian defense alliance could not be interpreted as directed against Russia any more than any other power.

put on the McKesson and Robbins payroll by Coster-Musica in January, 1934, at $5,000 a year to handle "tax matters."

"Advertising Expense"

Vouchers to McNeil, the witness went on, were put down on the books in one case as "advertising expense," and again when expense checks for $1,000 and $2,000 were sent, as "legal expenses."

"Was McNeil a lawyer?" asked Assistant U. S. Attorney Irving Kaufman.

"He was not," said Dietrich-Musica, who is appearing as a government witness in the mail fraud trial of five men accused of having had guilty knowledge of the spectacular juggling of assets by which Cocter-Musica looted millions from the $87,000,000 drug firm before shooting himself in his Connecticut mansion in 1938.

Prominent Men on Trial

Dietrich-Musica, the dead swindler's brother, has pleaded guilty to the indictment. On trial are Horace B. Merwin, a Bridgeport, Conn., banker; Rowley W. Phillips, a Waterbury, Conn., investment, broker; John H. McGloon, former McKesson comptroller; and Leonard and John O. Jenkins, brothers-in-law of Coster-Musica. Merwin and Phillips were McKesson directors.

Dietrich-Musica, who took the name of Dietrich as a pseudonym after Philip Musica, ex-convict, had been metamorphosed into F. "Donald Coster," swore that it was McGloon who had thought up the "pink slip system."

It was used as a reservoir for "political contributions and lobbying expenses," he said. "They didn't want it to appear on the books."

He put the total payments to McNeil at $28,583.

American Capacity Low

Because American capacity to produce munitions has declined radically since the world war, the prospective orders for explosives have been welcomed by army officials anxious to see this country's manufacturing facilities increased. Likewise, they welcomed the expansion of airplane manufacturing plants resulting from Allied orders.

Secretary Morgenthau told reporters today that the war purchases had not delayed plane deliveries to the army and navy, had not raised prices to the armed services, and had not violated secrets of army-navy procurement.

A Grave Problem That The People Must Meet

IT IS HIGH TIME for the people of this country—and that means the citizens of Cumberland—to concern themselves more seriously with the terrific tax load that is piling up against them in the aggregate.

It is an annoying and distasteful thing, this subject of taxation. Too many people are inclined to pass it up, to "let George do it," to put off until another time their own responsibilities in the matter.

Yesterday a Cumberland citizen, speaking with a representative of this newspaper, bewailed the fact that he was obliged to pay twenty-four times as much state income tax this year as he did last year; and wondered why the press didn't "raise hell" when that income tax was before the legislature. That is another instance of letting George—the press in this case—do the work; but the citizen was somewhat surprised when reminded that this newspaper could not be accused of disregarding that terrific and unjust tax exaction when it was before the General Assembly. It predicted then, by the way, that complaints like this would be heard when the people came face to face with these tax payments.

The annual reports of many of the leading corporations are now going to stockholders. They come along thus late in the year because it is impossible for a far-flung industrial enterprise to bring the multitudinous figures together any sooner. The increasing tax burden itself is responsible for so much of the delay. "It is necessary," states one report, "for the corporation to prepare and file approximately 1,030 returns or reports of various kinds in connection with taxes, many of which are complicated and voluminous. The burden in time and expense placed on the corporation as a consequence of the diverse and complicated tax structure is increasing from year to year."

Various of these corporation reports also show the expenditures of many fees to attorneys whose services are necessary as an aid in completing these reports properly.

The tax load is bearing down so heavily on the shareholders of corporations that, unless there is relief, it will not be long until profits are extinguished altogether everywhere.

One of the annual reports mentioned—that of Phelps-Dodge Corporation—notes that direct taxes for last year were equivalent to $1.09 a share, or thirty-one per cent of its net income, and represented $1.83 a day for each day worked by each of its employes.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company reports that its taxes took $1.83 a share in 1933 and increased last year to $3.89.

Radio Corporation of America, which could pay common stockholders only twenty cents a share last year, had to pay the equivalent of 34.5 cents a share in taxes on its common stock.

The Bell telephone system found its taxes increased eleven and a half million dollars last year, a boost of more than twenty-one millions since 1937; and its taxes, equalling as much as dividends, were equivalent to $10 for every telephone operated throughout its system. One-fourth of its tax bill was related to earnings, but the remaining three-quarters would have had to be paid whether there were earnings or losses.

Another far-flung corporation, employing a quarter of million workers, will show in its annual report to be released Monday taxes amounting to 55.6 of net earnings, equal to $2.37 a share of common stock against earnings of $4.04 a share; and equal to $523 for each employe and $8.12 on each $100 of sales.

There are thousands of like records. They emphasize the need for tax resistance on the part of the people in a self defense they must put up before it is too late.

All of this brings us down to the local tax situation, for taxes must be held in restraint in the local communities as well as in state and nation if we are ever to have recovery in this country. One of the things opponents are saying about Mayor Harry Irvine is that he is "cranky" about city finances. Well, in view of the foregoing reminders, it is certainly time for officials everywhere to get "cranky" and stubborn about this grave problem of taxes. Harry Irvine has contended for economy in costs of government and in all branches of the community service consistent with good work and budget allowances. There are some who do not like that, but as he sees it, as an official and as mayor in particular, it is his duty, not only under the law but also in accordance with practical "horse sense," to keep a close watch on the finances and the workings of the city government and to see that the finances are not overdrawn in any instance, or to see that the budget, as levied for the year, is not being overrun. He has done that with the aid of the entire membership of the city council whenever the occasion arose. He deserves credit for his stand and support in it.

Irvine deserves to be retained in his office for this reason if for no other. But there are other reasons. Experience with governmental affairs comes in good stead in these critical hours of increasing taxation and governmental encroachment. Irvine has had something to do with local government over quite a period. He was the first chief of police under the reorganized city government instituted in 1909. He then served as sheriff of the county, then went back to the tin mills for another period, then was elected finance commissioner and again was elected police and fire commissioner, becoming mayor by unanimous choice of council to serve the unexpired term of Dr. Koon.

Harry Irvine has Scotch blood in his veins—and remembering the thrifty character of the Scots, that is a good thing. He was born in Germantown, Pa., coming to Cumberland away back in 1877, being first employed at the North End glass works. He went into the tin milling industry in 1894 and followed that trade thence, having also had experience in mercantile business.

Irvine's experience, his attitude on governmental expenses, his realization of the general problems facing the citizenry certainly commend him for retention in the office he now holds. So also does the experience, as well as the records, of his councilmanic colleagues. To disrupt a smooth-working city government now, when its officials are doing their level best to keep it in sound shape, for an experimental period under novices would be foolish, indeed, in view of all that is here set forth regarding one of the most serious problems that is confronting the country as a whole.

Col. Ayres's Warning Has But One Good Answer

COL. LEONARD P. AYRES, noted economist and statistician, declares that "some new powerful and positive force" is needed to prevent the present business recession from turning into a renewed depression. Tracing a production decline from an all-time high of 128 in December to an estimated 105 for March, as measured by the Federal Reserve index, Ayres points out that "we have never had a decline of this magnitude following peak production that did not continue on downward into depression."

In addition, Col. Ayres says, "it must be remembered that the processes of expansion and contraction in business cycles are cumulative in nature. They are self-reinforcing, and when they have once gained either upward or downward momentum they tend to continue for some time as though impelled by an internal energy of their own.

"The soundest reason for arguing that this decline may go a good deal further would be that it has already gone so far."

The Cleveland Trust Company vice president finds it "probable that if this decline is to be promptly checked, and production trends turned upward again, the reversal must result from some new powerful and positive force.

"Such an upturn might come from a new wave of business confidence generated by a domestic political development. Perhaps a new upturn might be induced by large scale pump-priming. It might come from suddenly increased war orders. There are other possibilities, but the likelihood remains that a new powerful and positive generating force would be needed."

We have tried the pump-priming and it has not produced the anticipated results. The war orders have proved somewhat of a delusion. The wave of confidence generated by a political development seems to be the one big thing needed. It appears to be coming in a change of managers at Washington. The sooner, therefore, the evidence of such a change becomes sharply manifest by the openly expressed attitude of the people the better will the necessary powerful generating force be exerted to avert that which Col. Ayres warns us against.

A novelized biography of Galileo recalls that he developed the telescope. However, it wasn't arranged so that one could see through a keyhole with it and it brought him but small returns.

Washington, about to put a poor Wisconsin shoemaker in jail for not answering census questions, has changed its mind. The bureaucrats occasionally pause when there is an election in the offing.

Europe should obtain lasting peace when all the big belligerents have whittled each other down to where they are smaller and weaker than the neutrals.

I had dipped into his personal affairs and criticized HIM. He didn't know how I knew about him but he was sure that somebody who hated him had told me about him and tipped me off to write the article. I couldn't tell from his letter just what article it was or what I had said, but I gathered it was something about his being a perfect gentleman abroad and a cross-patch at home. . . . Or maybe it wasn't that. I can't be sure. The writer was so enraged that he was slightly incoherent in the expression of his anger. . . . He signed his name but no address and I can't find him in the city directory.

But it would do no good to write and tell him I never heard of him in my life. He'd call me a liar, say I'm trying to get out from under.

I suppose it would do no good, either, to tell him in words of one syllable that I not only was NOT writing about HIM, but that I was writing about ME! I had reached inside of me and found some foible or other in me that interested me. So I wrote about it. . . . And he, reading it, thought I was writing about him and was insulted.

Well, it's happened before . . . and it may happen again. . . . A few months ago there was a fiction story in a national magazine about a young girl who went to college and wasn't bid to a sorority and who was terribly disappointed about it all. And in my neighborhood there's a man who came home and said to his wife, "When did YOU get the time to write that story about our daughter?" (But of course his wife did NOT write that story.)

I've learned this: If you want to hit the other fellow squarely in the eye, pick on one of your own faults and write about it. If you pick out one of your virtues, he'll say: "That guy hates himself, doesn't he?" But if you pick out a weakness, he'll say to himself, "Me, too!"

Is that because the average man is sensitive to his own faults, blind to his best qualities? . . . . Search me, but I'm inclined to think so.

But that letter I received doesn't sound much like it.

Women Have Big Part in the War

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

News of the arrest in England of a woman deserter from the Royal Air Force, and her detention to await a court-martial, happened to fall into the paper on the same day as a long cabled dispatch from London about the fashions of British women in wartime.

The latter piece ran according to form, and might have been written in 1915. It emphasized the wholesome and gratifying trend toward "feminine frills and flounces," away from the mannish styles and military vogue of a few months ago.

The arrest story of the woman deserter seemed rather stark in contrast. There's a news item which doesn't run according to form. It is extremely unlikely that the lady will be shot. The event will yield so such drama as would the arrest of a beautiful woman spy. But it is a grim little aside on modern totalitarian. There are about 25,000 women, flying or in training, in the British air force.

Millions in War Service

Some estimates are that perhaps 10,000,000 women are or will be engaged either in combat service or industrial war work in this war, on both sides.

Women did a great deal of hard dirty drudgery in the World war, making munitions or working in factories. There were some West End and some titled women among them, exemplars of patriotism for the multitude. Women nurses were heroines, and acclaimed as such, but it is to be remembered that they were wretchedly paid, in all the contending armies, and that, in this country as well as Europe, they have no bonuses or benefits and no rip-snorting annual convention in which they joyously tear the town to pieces.

Somehow, these chatty fashion columns from the war zone about "women who retain their old sweet feminity"—we quote from one of them—are a bit off key these days. War is an all-pervasive evil which stifles chivalry, gallantry, tenderness and beauty. When we drop bombs on women and children, it it pretty-far fetched to builid up the illusory importance of their "frills and flounces."

A School War

Stringfellow Barr of St. John's College and other educators are starting a civil war among the schoolmen. Their latest recruit is professor Mortimer J. Adler of the University of Chicago, with his new book. "How To Read a Book: The Art of Getting a Liberal Education."

The main idea of this group, including Dr. Adler, is to catch the student young and rub in about 110 great books — the classics of the ages. It is table d'hote against an a la carte education, as we have known it with our elective system of German derivation.

Dr. Adler, contending that few of us really can read, wheels up some heavy artillery in support of their contention that if we would "read, learn, mark and inwardly digest" great literature and philosophy we would be an educated people in a great and true sense. They insist that the great books must be read in their entirety and in the original. There must be no condensations, no boiled down or pre-digested pabulum of any kind.

Cause of Wonder

One wonders about that. "How many of the brightest of us could profitably read Kant's "Critique of Reason," Newton's "Principia," Spinoza's "Sub Specie Aeternitatis," the Hegelian dialectic, the Darwinian biology or the Einsteinian physics without some kind of pony? Or, to put it differently, some kind of a step-down transformer? No doubt, all the above would be just pie to the professors, but I'm thinking of the rest of us, over on the human rather than the academic side of the news.

I have an idea that a couple of cum laude lads who gnawed their way dutifully through the new ten-foot shelf of books and wolfed every single word of them would be just talking to themselves when they got through. There are conflicts, too, among the great books. Machiavelli and Erasmus would certainly be strange company, and they're both great in their way; as would Huxley and Thomas Aquinas. Is a mind an organism which selectively takes in food, or is it a roll-top desk with 110 pigeon-holes in it?—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Holland Is Likely Now To Face Same Choice That Was Faced by the Finns

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, March 14—Finland's capitulation is a major event in the whole world situation. It is a major blow to the Allies. The present tendency, in America, because we favor the Allies, is to underestimate its importance. Commentators stress its military aspect, and say that in that sense it is not serious to the Allies. That may or may not be. But in a broader sense it is an extremely grave blow to the Allies.

Mark Sullivan

Finland had to choose between two things within her own soul, two motivations. One was a fear, fear of Russia. The other was a reliance, reliance upon Britain and France. If her fear of Russia were the greater motivation, she would make peace. If her reliance upon Britain and France were the greater motivation, she would fight on. Her decision would be, in effect, a judgment passed by her upon the value of reliance upon the Allies, as against Germany and Russia.

That was the situation—and Finland did not fight on. It amounts to an expression of judgment that Russia, with Germany, is more formidable than the Allies.

Not Mistrusted

In Finland's decision there is not, necessarily, any reflection upon the Allies. Very probably Finland did not mistrust the Allies' good faith at all. She may have felt merely that the Allies could not send enough help, or could not send help in time, or that the Allies might be prevented from sending troops across Sweden and Norway. Just why Finland did not rely upon the Allies does not matter.

With Sweden and Norway it was much the same as with Finland. They, like Finland, had two motivations. They balanced a fear against a wish. Their wish was that Finland be saved, for if Finland were not saved, Russia would be that much nearer their own boundaries. Had they consulted their wish, they would have relied upon the Allies, for they knew the Allies had promised help. But Sweden and Norway were warned by Germany that they must not let Allied troops cross their territory. And Sweden and Norway bowed to the demand of Germany. They regarded fear of Germany and Russia as more compelling than reliance upon the Allies. They, like Finland, took the course which suggested belief on their part that Germany and Russia are more formidable than the Allies.

In Same Position

Practically all the smaller nations of Europe are, in one way or another in the same position as Finland and Norway and Sweden. Denmark, Holland, Belgium must choose between the same two motivations, fear of Germany and reliance upon the Allies. Upon these smaller nations, Germany will make demands, just as Russia and Germany made demands on the Scandinavian nations.

Germany will probably demand of Holland that Holland permit the Germans to use her soil—for airbases, for passage of troops, or what not. Holland knows that she, alone, cannot resist. For resistance, she must rely upon Britain and France. Holland will be faced by precisely the same choice that Finland faced, choice between fear of Germany and reliance upon the Allies. Can we doubt that Holland, making that choice, may take into account the example of Finland, the same considerations that caused Finland to choose as she did?

Wish as you may, the fact is that Finland and the others, looking upon what has happened in the past, find some reason for their choice. Six months ago Poland relied upon the Allies—and Poland is gone. Twelve months ago, Czecho-Slovakia relied upon the Allies, had a guaranty from France—and Czecho-Slovakia is gone. Two years ago Austria had reason to suppose she could rely on the League of Nations, including the Allies—and Austria is gone. The little Baltic nations—Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania—thought they could rely on the League of Nations, including the Allies, but had to submit to Russia.

Influence Exiled

Two years ago France and Britain had centers of influence all through Europe, alliances, treaties of protection and mutual help. Today the influence of Britain and France has been almost exiled from the continent, outside France itself, and its immediate neighbors. Almost everywhere, Germany or Russia is dominant. The little nations, even though unwillingly and sullenly, submit to fear. Without much doubt, they prefer the ideals of the Allies, but they fear Germany and Russia. The unwillingness of the Allies to incite fear among small nations, and trade upon fear, accounts in part for what has happened. Their course is to their credit as civilized nations, but it has not helped in this war so far. From Munich on, it was Germany that was willing to be ruthless, and by that got her way.

What is said here about German and Russian dominance of most of Europe, omits mention of the Balkans. What is to happen there we may see as the war develops. And of course, outside Europe, on the sea and elsewhere, it is the Allies who dominate.

What Business Really Needs

By Representative Bruce Barton in Forbes Magazine

When I was elected to Congress in 1937, after thirty years in business, I was strongly of the mind that what the country needed most was not more laws, but fewer; and these most carefully written.

I am still of that mind.

Not only is business harassed by literally hundreds of thousands of laws, rules, regulations and executive orders; but, in many instances, the very spirit of enterprise is shackled and crippled by overlapping and conflicting measures, many of them glittering theory of managed economy or glib slogan of pump-priming.

Constructive and progressive government need not begin in every field of endeavor with a new handbook of "shalls" and "shall nots" for business. The news rules and regulations now flowing out of Washington daily make a volume of printed matter far greater than any business manager could read and digest if he did nothing else eight hours a day.

The answer to all this is weak and faulty administration, often by men and women who lack experience, sometimes by young payrollers who happen merely to be friends of influential administration advisers. Where government contacts business, management is justified fully, as I see it, in demanding of government the same standards of efficiency and dispatch which business itself exercises in the conduct of its own affairs.

Government can contribute immediately to recovery and economic stabilization by setting its own course, and then telling private enterprise to go to work. But American business cannot be conducted in jitter-bug rhythm.

America most assuredly is not a worn-out nation. I believe, on the contrary, we have the plant, resources, and trained man-power to carry us to new heights of prosperity.

But we must march to this new era of achievement by sound policies and wise, tolerant administration.

We must stop reckless spending.

We must put an end to imperious bureaucratic rule.

We must infuse all government with an abiding sense of moral responsibility.

We must advance constructively the cause of international peace.

We must rededicate our national thought and conscience to the lustrous standards of the American faith—the faith of industry, thrift, goodwill and the square square deal.

All this we may begin by establishing in Washington a government which believes in its heart in the American scheme of private enterprise.

Once these protections and securities are established, the venturesome spirit of enterprise will carry America to the fulfillment of her destiny.

Our course is forward, not back.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Eggs should be gathered at least four times daily from about the middle of April to the last day of September and three times daily the rest of the year, according to the 1940 Maryland Poultry Year Book, which has just been released by the Maryland State Poultry Council.

There was no change in the number of horses and mules on Maryland farms during 1939, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service. The first of this year the number was estimated at 82,000 head of horses and 28,000 head of mules.

George Abrams, specialist in apiculture for the University of Maryland Extension service, says many people find that the returns from the sale of honey furnish an excellent source of supplementary income during periods of light employment. This is especially true of railroad employees, carpenters, painters, miners and fishermen, who depend upon seasonal employment for a large part of their living expenses. Abrams points out that although the remuneration is small compared with the amount of time spent on the apiary, this extra income prevents many family budgets from showing a deficit.

Army Getting the Cold Shoulder

..... By HUGH S. JOHNSON .....

Washington, March 14—There is a smell in the Washington air of something like a complete disembowelment of the Army defense program by a congressional refusal to provide funds to carry it out.

Hugh Johnson

The Navy will get by partly because the president regards himself as a Navy man and doesn't pay much attention to the Army, and partly because Jimmy Byrnes is in charge of the Navy's needs in the Senate and is man enough to see that they don't go by default.

But the Army has never been any too adept at handling congressional committees. Its topside isn't altogether out of the doghouse with the administration and with Congress and it hasn't any outstanding congressional champion to present and insist upon its case. Even the presentation of the case to the country has been bad. There have been too many administration Pollyanna speeches assuring us that the Army is coming along satisfactorily in its modernization program and that there is nothing to fear.

Seen As Catostrophe

The fact is that it isn't coming along at more than a snail's pace and that if the Caspar Milquetoast requests it has made for money to make it come a little faster are slashed, it could be a major catastrophe.

It is reorganizing in modern streamlined divisions to be entirely motorized with new rapid-fire equipment and with many of the men behind steel shields. The war in Europe is proving that, with this kind of organization and equipment, far fewer men are needed, those who are used are much better protected from death or injury, and the great speed, range and mobility will enable a few men to defend a far greater area than was ever before thought possible.

Raids Chief Danger

This is a vital consideration in our military problem. Our principal danger is swift and unexpected raids. From an expense angle alone, we could not defend our vast stretches of coast and territory with fixed or slow forces. We couldn't do it with what we have. We can only be sure of doing it by what we propose to get. One other problem is to be able by an expeditionary force to repel or break up any hostile lodgment in Latin America. In view of the armament of other countries, both of these problems absolutely require such an army as I have described. Until we get it, our defenses will be woefully weak. We don't need a big army, but we need a small one that can move fast and hit hard over the widest area that any nation has to defend.

Tied to Slowest Unit

Now you can't do a half-way job on this. A motorized army has to be motorized all the way. It is tied to the speed of its slowest unit. It is an integrated whole and if part of it isn't high speed, the rest of it might as well not be. Furthermore, if you streamline your divisions on the theory that you will make up for the loss of men by armor and automatic weapons of vastly increased power and then don't provide the weapons, you have cut your defensive power in half—or worse.

It seems to me that we are making exactly this mistake right now even with the program as it is. If the appropriations are cut, I am absolutely certain that we shall make it.

May Be Caught Short

It is not an exaggeration to say that we have no usable army now. With the world at its most dangerous worst, we may be caught changing our clothes and so—very literally—with our pants down.

I don't like the air of secrecy that covers hearings of our military committees. They do not make sense. Foreign nations know all about this condition. The people who have the best right to know about it—precisely and exactly—are the people of the United States. They know precious little and what they know is largely wrong. Perhaps if they knew more, we might get some action.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

On the Record

By Representative Robert G. Allen, Democrat, of Pennsylvania

It is obvious that the government cannot regulate the bituminous coal industry without assuming full control. It cannot assume this control until it owns the mines outright. The soft coal industry is therefore faced with two alternatives: outright government ownership or the return of administrative control to private operators with the government acting as referee.

Sprague Says FDR Has Joined "Stop Dewey" Movement

New York, March 14 (AP)—J. Russel Sprague, manager of Thomas E. Dewey's presidential campaign, has issued a statement asserting that President Roosevelt had "joined the stop-Dewey movement."

He referred to the fact that Senator Minton (D-Ind) had said in Washington after lunching with the president that Mr. Roosevelt had agreed with him that Dewey could expect no better than the Republican vice-presidential nomination.

It is becoming clear who it is that the president is most afraid of. He has joined the stop-Dewey movement. And it is a curious coincidence that Mr. Roosevelt should joint the stop-Dewey movement the day after nationwide publication of a poll of delegates to the 1936 Republican National Convention which showed Mr. Dewey leading all other candidates for the presidential nomination and having almost a clear majority."

Visitor Should Help

If you are a guest in a home, try to be tidy and to keep your things in your own room. Guests always bring extra work to the hostess, no matter how much she may enjoy entertaining, so the visitor can help by not adding to the number of things left around the rooms for the housewife or servant to pick up.

Death Valley Scotty Has $100,000 Buried In Desert, He Says

Death Valley, Calif., March 14 (AP)—Death Valley Scotty says there is $100,000 lost in the desert mountains and he wants to know whether the U. S. government will fine him or send him to jail if he finds it.

It is in yellowbacks, ten $10,000 gold certificates.

Knowing that gold certificates were called in seven years ago, the desert rat wrote to the secretary of the treasury:

"I had a bunch of money amounting to one hundred thousand dollars in gold certificates and I buried it in the mountains about the year nineteen hundred and nine.

"Afterwards cloudbursts came and covered it up and maybe sometime I will be able to get it and maybe I will never get it. If I can find it, can I turn it in and get money I can use in exchange for it?"

Then he began to wonder about the law inflicting a penalty for not turning in gold certificates. So he wrote Attorney General Jackson:

"If I can find it, will I be fined or imprisoned?"

He is awaiting word from Washington.

Swiss Hoarding Still One-Quarter Effective

Zurich, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss National Bank officials, who have just completed a campaign against hoarding, have published figures showing that bank note hoarders still have about one-fourth of the Swiss bank notes issued.

Of the 2,100,000,000 Swiss francs in bank notes put into circulation by the bank, officials estimated about 500,000,000 ($114,000,000) are being hoarded by individuals or private concerns.

Much of this money, it is believed, has been smuggled across the frontier into Germany and is hidden there, where it commands a high premium.

LINKED WITH BETTE

Arthur Farnsworth

According to reports, romance is blooming between Screen Actress Bette Davis and Arthur Farnsworth, above. Farnsworth is assistant manager of a swank New Hampshire summer resort. The two met at the resort last summer. Miss Davis has denied the report, saying the two are just friends.

Southern College to Honor Negro Janitor

Macon, Ga., (AP) — Alumni and friends of 107-year-old Mercer University are digging into their pockets for $20,000 to buy and install chapel chimes memoralizing Robert E. Lee Battle.

Regardless of its military-sounding name, the memorial will have nothing to do with war. It will honor an humble negro by that name.

Lee, as the students called him, had no pretensions to scholarship. His estate consisted mainly of a $36 burial insurance policy. Yet Mercer, pride of white Georgia Baptists, has reserved for him honors bestowed only upon the elect.

When he died in December, 1939, Lee had been the college janitor for 40 years, had received little or no formal schooling, held no degrees—barring an honorary Ph.D. the alumni association voted him. But he had an understanding of life and its problems that had caused hundreds to come forward to honor him.

During Lee's long illness, scores of students volunteered for blood transfusions to prolong his life. After death his body lay in state at the university chapel.

And now, the alumni—bankers, educators and wealthy business men among them—are going to heap new honors on Lee Battle.

Now the Dead Sleep All Alone

Sandusky, O., (AP)—The Confederate dead keep a lonely vigil on Johnson's Island in Lake Erie, used as a northern prison camp during the Civil War.

Melvin Zelms and his family have moved to the mainland, leaving the island without tenants for the first time in many years. Dwellers on the tiny dot of land a mile offshore had been charged with the care of the 209 graves of Confederate soldiers buried there.

The Zelms' five children traveled by boat to the mainland to attend school.

Private business cannot compete with those agencies of the government which have little or no need to be concerned about economic risk.

Pueblo, Colo. (AP)—"I haven't any money," said the customer to the bartender, after several drinks, "but I'm the kind of a guy who would give you his pants."

Logan, O. (AP)—Early morning scene, witnessed by J. B. Wagner. Seated on a traffic light at an intersection was a screech owl. His position was such that he faced into the amber flasher. Mr. Owl dozed on the green and red, but when the amber signal came on he perked up, squared his shoulders and glared defiantly into the light.

THE DAILY STORY

THE TREASURE

Everyone Agreed That the Little Chinese Was Funny, but Most of Them Were Finally Thankful

By MARY DRAKE

"I don't know exactly how much this kind of stuff is worth," Tully Alastair admitted gruffly to the rotund little Chinese behind the teak table. "All I know is that it's probably valuable. I've heard that you better-class Chinks are honest, even if you are backward, so I'll leave the price to you. Want it?"

"Yes, we are, as you say, honest—even if a trifle backward," Fong Loy agreed mildly while his practiced fingers gently caressed the wide, plain circlet of jade which the unkempt Tully was offering for quick sale. His beady black eyes glitened with a flicker of some emotion as he produced from his pocket a tiny magnifying glass.

"Say, you don't doubt my word, do you?" Tully began belligerently, moving his bulky figure forward in a menacing proximity. The antique dealer smiled and held up a well-groomed hand in protest.

"Chinese backwardness, as you have pointed out, has its disadvantages," Fong Loy enlightened softly. "Being not yet completely civilized from occidential viewpoints, we Chinese have retained honesty as a virtue. You are fortunate!"

"You mean that you don't think that ring there is worth anything?" Tully demanded.

"On the contrary, it is practically invaluable . . . at least to one such as me, who treasures such objects. Look! This is no ordinary ring, but a jade object carved with the infinite patience and true artistry of my people!" Tully was undetermined, but he obediently held the glass to his eye and peered at the jade. He whistled.

"Why, there's thousands of little figures on that ring so small you can't even feel them, much less see them!" The Chinese smiled thinly and coughed.

"I will offer you one thousand dollars—cash—for the honor of possessing the jade. And if there is something more you have to sell—"

"The so-unfortunate Madame Mullane is better, I hope?" Fong Loy observed some time later from his sunlit entrance. Officer Mullane stopped the slow pacing of his beat past the antique shop and wrinkled his worried brow.

"Hello, Fong," he greeted with the familiarity of old friendship. "No, the missus isn't any better. She needs a new operation, the doc says, and it looks as though she won't get it. All the money I had saved has gone long ago for doctors."

Fong Loy shook his head sympathetically.

"I have burned joss before my gods," he divulged sincerely, "but time is of no measurement in eternity. Perhaps if you could consider again a small loan from a friend might hasten the providential aid the gods are undoubtedly considering!"

Officer Mullane's worried Irish face grinned wanly.

"I can't take your money, even to help the missus, but I'm grateful to you all the same. The luck of the Irish will come—I feel it in my bones!"

Fong clucked his tongue, shrugged and changed the subject tactfully. "Could it be possible that Capt. O'Donnell has given you the current list of stolen valuables to be looked for in pawnshops? From pure curiosity I would be deeply grateful if I could see it!"

Officer Mullane delved into an inside pocket and produced an assortment of papers. "You're a queer one, Fong," he commented as he handed over a sheaf of printed sheets. "You've begged enough of these 'wanted' posters from the department during the last month or so to paper a house. You think you're going to run across the guy who knocked off your cousin when the labor rackets pushed in his laundry?"

"Such a possibility appears to be too felicitous," Fong Loy admitted ruefully, pocketing the papers. "As a customer pointed out just a few minutes since, We Chinese are a backward race. We prefer to dwell upon that which has been done—even if it is distasteful. As Li Po says, even a blade of grass casts a shadow behind itself!"

Officer Mullane grinned. Funny people these Chinese, especially the educated ones like Fong. You just couldn't figure them out!

Officer Mullane continued the faithful walking of his beat and with his mind preoccupied with the utter impossibility of raising funds to provide the needed operation, he soon dismissed Fong Loy from his thoughts. It wasn't until that afternoon that he had occasion to remember him, as he was passing the shop on the other side of the street.

"Hm! That's queer!" he muttered to himself as he looked with curiosity at the blank face of the shop. "Fong must be sick, to shut up his shop in the middle of the afternoon!"

The heavy brocaded drapes of the display window were tightly pulled together, as if to exclude the bright sunlight from the interior. Mullane walked over to inspect the notice pinned to the fold of one of the drapes. He read it twice before the full import of the message struck home.

"Mister Mullane," he read to himself. "From this customer, who will be within my establishment if you chance to read this communication, I have purchased a family heirloom once the property of a certain cousin. Kindly consult your pictures and act."

"Wanted for Murder," the notice with the picture matching that pinned on the drape read. "Tully Alastair, One Thousand Dollars Reward. Dead or Alive."

"These Chinese!" Officer Mullane grunted affectionately as he shoved open the door and entered.

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

Soldier's Lot Is Not A Standing One

Baden, Switzerland (AP)—Business has been so bad in Baden's casino, built and furnished in the 80's, that it has been closed for a decade. The town fathers recently decided to turn over all the casino furnishings to Swiss soldiers on frontier duty.

That's why husky Swiss frontier troops in the dugouts along the frontier are now reclining on silk and red plus settees, chairs and couches, ancient and worn but still capable of doing service in the frontier mud.

Walla-Walla Felines An Exclusive Breed

Walla Walla, Wash. (AP)—Mousecatchers at the Washingfton State Prison can trace their lineage straight back for 50 to 75 generations.

Prison officials say that for more than 50 years the cats within the walls never have seen nor mated with a feline outsider. There are about 50 in the prison now.

Their forebears colonized the prison in 1887. The warden had issued an appeal for a good mouser. He received 23 sacks of them.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

Rhubarb can be enjoyed by the home-gardener about three weeks earlier than Natural normally would provide it, by subjecting it to the speeding-up process. This calls for covering selected crowns of the plants in the open ground with barrels, kegs or boxes.

As soon as the rhubarb sprouts appear, cover them with a barrel from which top and bottom have been removed, as shown in the above GARDEN-GRAPH. Place an eight-inch layer of manure around the bottom of each barrel as illustrated. This provides warmth for the plants and encourages the growth of extra large stalgs. If the weather is unusually cold or windy, the top of the barrel can be party covered to protect the plants.

Speeding-up rhubarb by this means does not injure the plant. The barrel can be removed after the plant is in normal production, but the manure should be left heaped about it as a mulch. Do not attempt to force poor-looking, or weak crowns, but select only strong, sturdy ones.

PLAY IT SAFE, TOO

TRYING for extra tricks above your contract is highly commendable, especially in match-play duplicate games, but sometimes you have a choice between the right and wrong way to do it. One course may produce the overtrick if it works, but cause defeat of the contract if it fails. The other alternative may involve no risk of the contract whatever, and still give you a good chance for your additional trick. As between these there is, of course, no argument. With one you stand to gain or lose, whereas with the other you have a chance to gain and no chance to lose.

West led his heart K to the A and South immediately dropped the trumps with his two tops, then studied the hand a bit—but only a bit. He saw that making four-odd was easy enough, with the loss of just two clubs and one heart. Then he saw that he could get an extra trick by discarding a club on a diamond if the diamond finesse would work. He tried it. East won with the diamond Q, took two clubs and switched to a heart, defeating the contract.

After the opening heart trick, two spades and the diamond A, South should have played to the diamond K, thus making sure he would lose no diamond tricks, then should have led the diamond J. If East ducked, he should have discarded a club on it. Then, if West had the diamond Q the contract was safe. If East had it, an overtrick was in the bag. Of course, if East covered the diamond J, South could ruff, then go to the dummy and lead the diamond 10, discarding a club and making five.

Skeleton Believed That Of Missing Elkins Man

Elkins, W. Va., March 14 (AP) — Barbour county officials checked up today on a man who disappeared from Elkins in 1926 in an effort to identify a skeleton found near Philippi.

Sheriff J. N. Foreman and Prosecutor H. J. Poling were assisted in the inquiry by Sheriff Dale Crawford of Randolph county in the theory that the bones might be those of Jim Cirillo former Elkins resident.

John Monto said Cirillo left Elkins Oct. 15 1926 and has not been heard from since. Cirillo and Monto were partners in construction work.

Patrolmen Guard Honeymooners From Intruders on Island Eden

The first "king and queen" of Honeymoon Isle as they left church after their wedding in St. Louis March 5. They are Tom Phelps, 22, airline clerk, and the former Mary Beauvais, 22.

By The AP Feature Service

Clearwater, Fla. — Hand-picked honeymooners are taking over a romantic, secluded island in the Gulf of Mexico near here for the summer.

Hundreds of couples—fifty at a time—will spend two weeks each on the island as guests of Clinton M. Washburn, New York real estate broker, who bought the 335-acre wooded strip of land about two years ago.

Privacy on their sandy beach, along palmy lanes and in thatched cottages guarded by mounted patrolmen who turn back intruders.

Almost Everything Free

Everything is free except bed linen and food—which are sold at cost on the island.

At the beginning of each two-week period, the honeymooners elect a "king and queen" to rule over the island and to entertain the other couples with music, cards and dancing in the "royal palace."

The Clearwater Lions Club built a cottage; the town of Dunedin has offered free use of rowboats, the Tampa Garden Club has planted a tropical garden, the city of Tampa gives a free Spanish dinner and hotel accommodations to each couple en route to the isle.

Washburn has selected the couples from thousands of applicants from all parts of the country. "They come from all sorts of people; and we are being careful to select those with the best characters," he explained.

"Professional people have applied, and so have factory workers. I hope all of them will find pleasure on the island. Otherwise, the purpose of it—to make their honeymoon the happiest periods of their lives—would be defeated."

Legens, Of Course

No more is known of what Washburn intends to do with the island after the last honeymooners leave in September than is known of the history of the island itself.

Until Washburn dubbed the spot "honeymoon isle," even the earliest settlers only had known it as "Hog Island." Like nearly every Florida key in this section, legends of priacy and buried treasure are woven into its history.

The only inhabitants, before the honeymooners came, were a couple of bald eagles. But some folks remember the place once was the home of egrets, wild hogs and deer.

Bashed-In Skulls

One old-time resident of Clearwater tells about finding skeletons of men with bashed-in heads during a boyhood grave-digging excursion. The Smithsonian Institution has some of the skeletons and some of the instruments of war which probably were used in a long past battle between Indian tribes.

The island lies three miles north of Clearwater and 23 miles from Tampa. It is two and a half miles in length and a half mile in width. The highest spot is about eight feet above sea level. It is screened from the mainland by a heavy growth of mangroves, while on the Gulf side there stretches one of the finest bathing beaches in this section.

Mosquitoes have a wing spread of more than 4 square yards for each pound of body weight.

Seven-League Cat

Hollywood, Calif. (AP)—Peter the Great, an ordinary black cat purchased from the city pound for fifty cents, is the screen's newest villain as a result of his work in "Dr. Cyclops." In the picture, "Peter the Great" continuously

Start Exercising Early To Fit Your Easter Togs

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

Before you line up for the Easter parade how about lining up your figure? Whether you choose the long-torso or the wasp-waist silhouette, you'll probably wish you were just a bit smaller in waist and hips. Exercise will put them in line.

Some interesting "perfect" dimensions have been compiled at the American Woman's club by Miss Catherine Van Rensselaer, who has advised thousands of women about their faces and figures. Here are her measurements:

THE MATRON—38 to 45 years old; height, seven inches; bust, 38 inches; waist, 30 inches; hips, 40 inches, weight, from 140 to 145 pounds.

THE YOUNG WOMAN—18 to 25 years old; height, five feet seven; bust, 34; waist, 24; hips, 34; weight from 115 to 120 pounds.

Now you needn't worry if you don't fit into either group. But it is helpful to have these figures for purposes of comparison. Exercises are particularly good for people who put on pounds easily; they keep you firm and agile. And you can get rid of excess fat without losing much weight, you know, through exercise and massage; inches go, even if pounds don't.

The main thing to remember with exercises is to do them every day. Here are three, all good for pulling down waist and hips:

1. Lie on your back. Stretch your arms over your head, keeping your feet together. Now raise your torso and touch your feet with your hands. Now comes the difficult part: With your hands on your feet, roll straight back, hands and feet in air, as shown above. Repeat in rhythm eight or ten times.
2. Stand with feet slightly apart, toes straight ahead. Tuck your right hand under your right arm and arch the other arm over your head. Bend your body to the left as far as possible, then return to starting position. Repeat five times to each side, alternately.
3. Place feet slightly apart, toes straight ahead. Extend arms to the side at shoulder level. Bend over and touch right hand to the left foot, letting the left arm swing upward. Return to starting position and repeat in opposite direction. This is a four-count exercise. The knees should not bend. Repeat 15 or 20 times.

As for all exercises, don't try to do the full quota at the start. Begin with a few trials and increase by degrees.

Even with Edge

The proper way to place chairs at the dining table is for the front edge of the chair to be placed even with the edge of the table.

Two Muskrats Have Permanent Waves

Cambridge, Md., March 14 (AP)—Something new in the fur industry—muskrats with "permanent waves" in their pelts—have been trapped on Maryland's eastern shore.

Although only two of the odd specimens have been caught so far, the possibilities presented by their capture have trappers, fur buyers, and biological survey officials in something of a dither.

Dr. Herbert L. Dozier, director of the federal fur animal field station here, reported both "permanent wave" muskrats lacked the normal long guard hairs and their short hair was wavy, rippled, "very soft and with a beautiful silky sheen."

The hair of the female was "distinctly more waved and in a manner quite similar to the permanent wave that is usually obtained only in a beauty shop," Dr. Dozier said.

"Nothing even closely resembling it has ever been reported heretofore out of the millions of muskrats that have been trapped and sold over the country . . . it is quite evident that this mutation or sudden jump in nature would be very desirable and welcomed by the fur trade if live animals could be obtained and this trait established."

The first of the unusual 'rats was trapped by Russell Insley on Feb. 18, 1940, on Twin Ponds in the Blackwater refuge; the second was the female, caught by Cecil Moore on March 6, on Sunken Island, also in the refuge, about two miles from the scene of Insley's traps.

WHAT'S WRONG HERE!

People who know their horses have been finding fault with this pony express stamp which goes on sale April 3. Some of the chief complaints are: the horse's head is too small; the right foot's in the wrong position and the saddle is fifty years ahead of its time. Do you see anything else wrong?

Student Changes Mind

Huntington W. Va., March 14 (AP)—William (Bill) Haverty, Jr., seventeen-year-old Marshall college freshmen, who left his books to join the Finnish army and fight Russians, has decided to sell books instead.

Haverty left college February 9, after telling classmates he was on his way to Finland to "strike a blow for liberty."

His mother, Mrs. Mary E. Haverty, said Bill wrote her from St. Louis, saying he had joined a traveling crew putting on a bookselling campaign.

Reports that one or two other Marshall students had started to Finland with Haverty proved unfunded.

Soft, Becoming Jacket-Dress

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9336

You know the clever versatility and adaptability of a jacket ensemble. But you've seldom seen as becoming a style as Marian Martin's Pattern 9336. The jacket, so useful for street wear, can be worn over other frocks as well. The dress has a flattering, straight-from-the-shoulder cut, with its slim princess lines. Cut the neck in a plain or a squared-off V-shape, and you might add a frill of ruffling for soft femininity. The gathers down the center of the bodice are softly becoming. Let a belt buckle in front or go from the sides around to the back. For a truly striking effect, consider making the two front panels in contrast.

Pattern 9336 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36, entire ensemble, requires 6¼ yards 39 inch.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Our new Marian Martin pattern book brings the world of fashion right into your home! Without stirring from your arm-chair, you can plan your whole Spring wardrobe—on inexpensive, easy-to-sew terms. Windjammers Can't Dodge Subs So This Year's Grain Race Is Off

The Abrahim Rydberg near Falmouth, Eng., after a 108-day voyage in the grain race.

By The (AP) Feature Service

There'll be no grain race this year, no speeding sweep of great wind ships from Australia, 'round the Horn to England. War's threats of swift destruction have barred it.

Already one of the competing windjammers has been sunk by a mine in the North Sea.

Sailing ships are easy prey for submarines; it's virtually impossible to protect them by the convoy system. And if the war keeps the old sailors tied up two or three years, it's likely they'll vanish through depreciation.

The grain race was revived soon after the World War when a Finnish seaman, Capt. Gustaf Erikson, picked up a number of idle ships that were clogging world harbors for almost a song. The Erikson fleet's home port has been Mariehamn, on Finland's Aaland Islands.

Erikson found plenty of Scandinavian lads who were only too anxious to man his ships for him so as to get their apprenticeship in sail.

The race has been unusual in many respects. It served to keep in service the few remaining sailing ships; it maintained the tradition of the "sailor's way"—the brutal, crushing run around Cape Horn—and it was a race for which the winner got nothing.

It also was a commentary on the stubborn reluctance of sailing ships to yield to steam. The vessels made the 16,000-mile voyage out to Australia just to pick up the one cargo of grain and race it back to England. Steam is faster, but sail was almost better for grain. Rates were cheaper and, since grain, if handled properly, is almost imperishable, time didn't matter. Sailing ships really were mobile storehouses; their cargoes often were sold, resold and manipulated while the ships were enroute.

The idea of a race probably arose from the shipmasters' desire to give the men something to think about on the weary trip.

Only a few years ago, comparatively, there were almost a hundred sailing ships in the grain trade. By the last race, in 1939, there were only 13, nearly all Erikson's. It may well be that the war has doomed them forever.

This Cat Has 158 Lives

Hoquiam, Wash. (AP)—Prolific is the word for "Nigger."

Hoquiam claims "Nigger," a 12-year-old alley cat, is "the world's most prolific" feline. Since she made a cigar store her home when she was a kitten, "Nigger" has—by strict count—had 158 descendants. Amateur statisticians figure that by now the black cat's family is in its 35th generation.

Praising Child's Improvement Is Important Step

Various Methods to Get Children To Do Better Work

BY GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Not how well a child can do, but how much better he can do than he did before is what counts. While I was in teacher training, I tried hard to help those preparing to teach and teachers in service to see that improvement by each child, and not his actual achievement, is the thing to keep interested in.

In my book, The Learner and His Attitude, I discussed the phychology of improvement and its emotional attendants at length. Since then I have had the pleasure of seeing some of my former students apply these principles. One teacher, for example, had each member of her class keep an "improvement book," in which he entered samples of his writings once each month. Elsewhere I found displayed on the walls work of those children who, in one or several subjects, had made marked improvements over a month or so. Accordingly, the poorest writer or drawer of the room might have had his work on display. Effort was inspired thereby and children were not rewarded for the contributions of their dead grandparents.

Do It Now!

May I entreat teachers now to get samples of your children's work in any subject you wish to emphasize. Then, after a few months, bather similar samples again, and exhibit a number of those that show the most improvement during the interval.

A certain mother writes about her boy in the second grade whose teacher says, "he is the best reader in the class," but is "hopelessly lost when it comes to art and writing. His teacher makes so much of the ability to draw that he is discouraged and often weeps when he goes to bed at night because he says he can never do anything good enough to have it put on the wall."

This problem never would have arisen if the teacher had employed the principle of emphasizing improvement rather than absolute performance.

Possibilities For Parents

This principle has great possibilities for parents. Let us express pleasure over the improvement of the child in any trait. Put on the kitchen wall the paper your child brings home which is better than the one he brought home yesterday or last week—no matter how low the grade on it or how unsightly. If the grade is better than the one before, or if the paper is neater than an earlier one, let the whole family enjoy evidence of the improvement.

You may have a list of books on How to Study and a page of Tips to Students by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Seven Freed in Probe Of Murder at Logan

Logan, W. Va., March 14 (AP)—Four women and three men who were detained for questioning about the death of Charles White, 65, have been released from custody, Sheriff Everett Workman announced here.

Arthur Diano Wagner, Fred Underwood, A. B. Collins, Mrs. Grace Bishop, Edith Perry and Marjorie Hannah were arrested last week on warrants sworn out by Herschel White a few hours after his father's body was found.

Peggie Deskins, convicted and sentenced for a misdemeanor a few days after White disappeared from a party on February 20, had been detained for questioning with the group, authorities said.

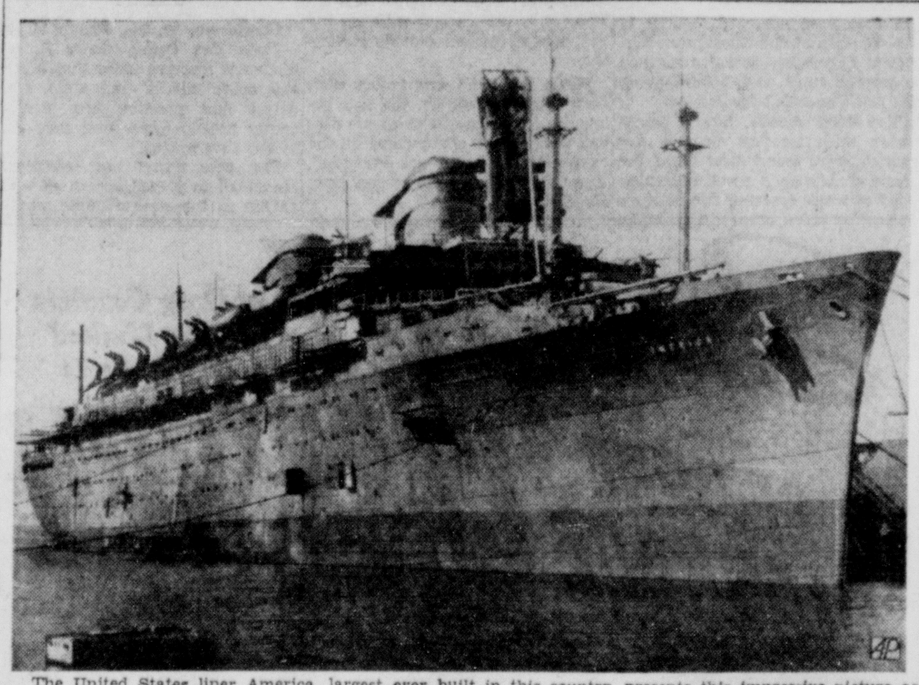

All have been released.

A coroner's jury decided White was killed by a blow on the back of the head. His body was found about 500 yards from a suburban house where he had attended a party on February 20, the night he disappeared.

Dr. Klemm Running For Congress for 9th Time in 20 Years

Mt. Rainier, Md., March 14 (AP)—Running for Congress is practically a habit with Dr. John William Klemm.

Off and on for twenty years, the Mt. Rainier physician has followed a regular routine in election years, in an effort to become representtive from Maryland's Fifth District. He files his candidacy, conducts his campaign, and is beaten in the primaries.

Today, at the age of 82 but still hale and hopeful, Dr. Klemm filed again—the ninth campaign he has undertaken since his first bid in 1920.

So far as the records in the secretary of state's office were concerned, Dr. Klemm is the only candidate in the Democratic primary from the Fifth District, but it was a foregone conclusion that Rep. Lansdale G. Sasser, an announced candidate, would file for reelection.

In the primaries since 1920, Dr. Klemm has received a grand total of 8,985 votes. In 1938, opposing the late Rep. Stephen Gambrill, Dr. Klemm polled his highest vote—3,655. Gambrill was renominated 33,049.

The elderly physician was born May 12, 1858 in High Falls, N. Y., and served in the federal government—the pension bureau and the Congressional library — for thirty-five years. He is married and has two children.

Charleston, W. Va., March 14 (AP)—Attorney-General Clarence W. Meadows filed today for renomination on the Democratic ticket, the third member of the Board of Public Works to give official notice to the Secretary of State.

Meadows, elected in 1936, said informally several weeks ago that he probably would seek reelection.

Treasurer R. E. Abbott and Secretary of State W. S. O'Brien also have filed their certificates. State Superintendent of Schools W. W. Trent and Agriculture Commissioner J. B. McLaughlin have announced they would run but have not filed.

Meadows served in the 1931-32 House of Delegates and was Raleigh county prosecutor from 1933 until 1937, when he succeeded Governor Homer A. Holt in the attorney-general's office.

G. C. Belknap of Gassaway, former state senator, filed today for the short term Democratic nomination for State Senate in the 12th Senatorial district, composed of Braxton, Nicholas, Pendleton, Pocohontas, Randolph and Webster counties.

G. Amos Brissey of Berea, Ritchie county, filed for the Democratic nomination for State Senate in the third Senatornal district, composed of Calhoun, Gilmer, Pleasants, Ritchie, Wirt and Wood counties.

The post of member of the State Republican Executive Committee is sought by Rosalie C. Muller of Raleigh, Raleigh county, who was an unsuccessful candidate for the State Senate in the Ninth Senatorial district in 1938.

Tells Strange Story Of Death of Fish

Prince Frederick, Md., March 14 (AP)—Experts of the Chesapeake Biological Laboratory at Solomons had a strange story to tell here about 200 fish who killed themselves.

The finny victims, largely fresh-water bass, together with a few sunfish, were found dead along the shore of Armiger's pond, a shallow body of water covering two or three acres north of Prince Frederick.

Dr. R. A. Olsen, pollution expert, and David H. Wallace, associate biologist, examined the pond at the request of Deputy Game Warden Thomas I. Weems and reported the fish died of carbon dioxide poisoning.

While the pond was frozen over, their report explained, the fish below the ice continued to exhale carbon dioxide to a point where all the oxygen in the water was exhausted. When they inhaled the carbon dioxide, they died.

Wheeling Beats W-I of Clarksburg 52-32

Kingwood Bows to South Charleston In Opening Round

Wheeling Surprises with Easy Triumph over Co-Favorite

More Than 3,000 Fans See Opening of W. Va. Tourney

Morgantown, W. Va., March 14 (AP)—The Gold of Wheeling, playing like champions, rolled to an easy 52-32 first round victory today over hitherto unbeaten Washington Irving of Clarksburg as the twenty-seventh annual state scholastic basketball tournament started.

More than 3,000 fans jammed West Virginia University's field house to see South Charleston whip a fast Kingwood team 54-38 and then watch amazed as Wheeling walked away from a team which had shared the pre-tournament favorite spot.

Wheeling Off Fast

It took Wheeling just six minutes to run up ten points before Washington Irving got started. The team which had gone through a schedule undefeated and then handled all opponents in sectional and regional eliminations with finese, could not cope with big Dick Mehen, the Gold star.

He accounted for nine points in the opening period, and Wheeling, displaying cool teamwork from then on, dispensed with his service entirely during the last quarter.

W-I appeared nervous, missing a number of easy points, although Mazza rang up sixteen points to tie Jebbia of Wheeling for runnerup scoring honors. Mehen was top man with nineteen points.

South Charleston had an easy time defeating Kingwood, which had a spotless record up to the time it entered the state tournament.

Kingwood jumped off to a 2-1 lead but the Black Eagles overhauled their opponents in the first three minutes and thereafter never were headed.

Rangy Fred Morecraft set a blistering scoring pace and the Eagles moved twelve points out in front in the second period, which ended 26-14. Kingwood failed to score a point in the second quarter until Crogan counted a free throw with forty-five seconds remaining.

Morecraft got nearly all his baskets on fine rebound work and again dominated the play in the second half, which turned into a breeze for South Charleston.

Garrett and Zilch scored its second straight victory in the last half dash of the South End Booster Basketball League last night on the Penn Avenue court, defeating the Weber combination 33-30.

G. and Z. started off with a bang, scoring 11 points before Weber's could find the range. At the halfway mark, the winners held a 17-11 advantage.

In the last half, Weber outplayed and outscored Garrett and Zilch only to have a great rally cut short by the final whistle. Eddie Spear and Harold Hipsley scored half of the losers' points while Reese Early and "Boots" Sapp, a substitute, accounted for 20 of the victors' counters.

In the second game of the doubleheader, Keegan's Gassers making their first start in the home stretch, easily turned back the South End Merchants 43-28.

The Gassers put on a last half spree after the Merchants marked up a 24-19 lead at the intermission. Two baskets at the start of the final half cut the Merchants' edge to one point and a little later the Merchants faded out completely.

"Bus" Miller led the Gassers' attack with 18 points and also played a great defensive game. Glen Zimmerman led the losing crew with ten counters. Fred Hamilton, a member of the Cumberland Collegian squad last year, made his debut with Keegan's crew and snared nine points.

In games tonight Post's Pirates will tangle with Columbus Lodge at 7:30 and the Merchants will encounter Smith's Grocers at 8:15.

BASEBALL MACS IN CONCLAVE

THE ASTONISHED ACROBAT

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14 (N.A.N.A.)—It is too early yet to compare the acrobatic Joe Gordon with such long-term second basemen as Larry Lajoie, Eddie Collins, Johnny Evers or Charley Gehringer.

The Yankee's bounding rubber ball around second base hasn't been in harness long enough. But for all that his mates will tell you that Joe Gordon can cover more ground than any infielder that ever lived—that he can make plays no other second baseman could hope to pull off.

As Bill Dickey puts it, "In the first place Gordon has amazing foot and hand speed. At Oregon on the gridiron he was rated on even terms with George Washington's Tuffey Leemans when both were freshmen He has unusual starting speed, which is a big factor.

"There's something else. Gordon is an acrobat. He worked for two years at the acrobatic art, of whatever it is. He can throw himself into the air then turn or twist his body several feet in either direction. This accounts for many of those impossible line drive catches he makes when the ball seems to be well out of reach.

"I'll tell you honestly that I've seen Joe Gordon make plays around second that I knew were impossible. I've seen him time and again go back of the bag to dig up a whistling smash, and one play later kill off another hit in short right field, over by first. It's almost impossible to get a ground ball by him, no matter how hard it is hit. He has the knack of timing the play in a split second. He seems to sense where the bill is going before it is hit."

Star Athlete

Bounding Joe is a happy, cheerful ex-collegian with a quick smile. I don't believe the fate of the world, thrown across the back of his neck, could make him tighten up.

After his freshman football year, Gordon turned out with a horde of frosh baseball candidates and was immediately spotted a coming star. Taking no chance on so much talent coming into violent cantact with a blocking back, the baseball coach had Joe removed from the football list. This was a short act. There have been football stars who also became major league baseball stars, such as Christy Matthewson, Mickey Cochrane and a few others, but football can also leave a bad shoulder of a bad elbow or a bad knee.

Gordon was one of those ball playing types who had Big League written all over him from the start, even a college start. Others who gave you the same instant tip were Ty Cobb, George Sisler, Tris Speaker, Babe Ruth and Joe Jackson.

Great Second Baseman

Where will Gordon's place be among the great second basemen of all time? Larry Lajole had twenty-one years under the Big Tent. Eddie Collins served out seventeen years. Both finished with lifetime batting averages above .350. Johnny Evers was around for a long term and Gehringer, still on the firing line, still one of the greatest, has moved beyond the ten-year test.

Lajoie, a two-hundred-pounder, had more ease and natural grace than any ball player I ever saw. I can't recall ever seeing him make what looked to be a hard play. He made them all look easy.

Larry was also one of the great hitters. One season he passed .400 with the old ball. No man ever lived who could slash one through the infield as the big Woonsocket Frenchman did. But he lacked Gordon's terrific speed.

Eddie Collins was not only a great second baseman and a .350 hitter, but also one of the best of all base runners. As I recall the vital statistics he stole 63 bases in one season.

Collins and Lajoie are rated around the top, with Gehringer in the same class. Evers was one of the smartest of them all, but the Trojan Splinter was well behind this trio at the plate, lacking the physical power needed for the big punch.

Joe Gordon, at 26 or 27, should be a great ball player for another ten years. His almost complete lack of tension will be a big factor in taking him along at top speed. He is a dangerous man at bat, but he could use a few more points in his annual average. He should be a natural .330 hitter anyway.

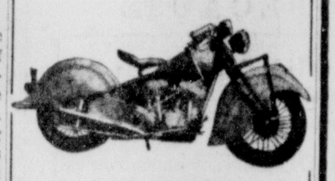

Barring a bad break of luck, Gordon is almost certain to finish as the greatest defensive infielder of all time. There is no way to prove it, but I believe he will be many acres ahead of all competition when it comes to covering ground. Joe not only covers the ground but he also comes up with the ball. His catlike balance is largely responsible for this. He is almost never off balance, no matter what acrobatic contortions may precede the play.

There are times when he is an entire circus, including the elephants and the pink lemonade.

Protect Bullfrogs!

Sportsmen of Ohio are clamoring for legislation to protect bullfrogs, according to an announcement from the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources. They are pointing out that bullfrogs have a definite food and sports value, and that size limits and bag limits should be established.—From the National Wildlife Federation.

Eagles Attack Coyotes

Two eagles were recently seen to attack a pair of coyotes, A Texas game warden, J. H. Maggard of Amarillo, saw the eagles chase the coyotes over the plain, swooping time and again, striking the coyotes with their beaks and talons so hard that the animals were repeatedly knocked to the ground. The chase ended when the birds sighted the warden and flapped on their way—From the National Wildlife Federation.

Pytlak Still Refuses To Sign with Tribe

Buffalo, N. Y., March 14. (AP)—Frank Pytlak, Cleveland Indians' hold-out catcher, reiterated today his intention of remaining out of organized baseball this season, if necessary, rather than accepting what he termed "a ridiculously low salary."

"If they don't think I'm worth any more than that to the club, why don't they trade me," he asked, declining to give the amount involved.

He said the next move is up to the Cleveland club, which "has made no attempt to call me down for a conference."

Thevenow To Manage Ashland Class D Club

Ashland, Ky., March 14 (AP)—Kelly McNish, president of the Ashland Baseball Corporation, announced today that Tommy Thevenow, former infielder for the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates, has signed a contract to manage the Ashland Colonels in the mountain state Class D league.

Thevenow, a resident of Madison, Ind., is planning to open a baseball school here April 1.

Frozen Fish

During the cold wave last winter fish were killed by the frigid water as far south as the Florida Keys, field men of the National Wildlife Federation, Washington, D. C., report. These were "reef fish" such as groupers and snappers. When they came close to the surface near shore, the cold air so lowered the temperature of the water that thousands of these fish perished.—From the National Wildlife Federation.

Yankee Empire May Be Sold to Syndicate

Negotiations Not Complete; Barrow Denies Knowledge

James J. Walker, ex-Mayor of New York, Member of Syndicate

Says Negotiations Are Still on Fire; Wants Barrow at Helm

baseball empire of the New York Yankees, estimated as worth $6,000,000 to $10,000,000 and frequently reported for sale since the death of Col. Jacob Ruppert a year ago, may be transferred to a syndicate headed by Governor Francis P. Murphy of New Hampshire before the season opens next month.

Murphy, in Boston tonight, confirmed the fact he has been negotiating for control of the club and would have a personal interest in it.

Several details must be ironed out before the transaction is completed, he said, but in New York it was believed virtually every phase of the sale had been developed except obtaining approval of the other clubs in the American League.

There was no reason to expect that this would be withheld.

Barrow Ducks Issue

All officials of the Yankees were in Florida and the only one who could be reached for comment was President Edward G. Barrow, who denied that any new negotiations were under way, but admitted:

"All that is handled by Byron Clark," for many years personal attorney for Col. Ruppert and one of the directors of the ball club. Clark also was in Florida.

Governor Murphy, a Manchester, N. H., shoe manufacturer, has been an ardent baseball fan for many years. He was defeated this week in an election of delegates to the Republican national convention and some of his friends expect that he will retire from politics if this deal is completed.

Murphy at one time was a stockholder of the Boston National League club, and his name was linked with it as a possible purchaser when it got into financial difficulties.

The New York Sun also reported today that James J. Walker, former mayor of New York and father of the Sunday baseball law in this state, had been approached by three different persons asking him to head a group to buy the club.

Wants Barrow Retained

Arrangements still "are on the fire," he told the paper, but added that he would consider the proposition only if Barrow was permitted to remain as executive head of the baseball system, which includes Newark, Kansas City and many other Minor league teams.

Rumors of a deal for the baseball properties have been current for months since the death of Col. Jacob Ruppert at the age of 71 on January 13, 1939. He left a fortune at that time estimated at more than $40,000,000.

The bulk of this estate passed to two nieces, Mrs. Joseph Holleran of Greenwich, Conn., and Mrs. J. Basil Maguire, also of Greenwich, and a friend., Helen Winetrope Weyant, 38-year-old former actress.

Actual control of the baseball club, however, was placed in the hands of four trustees, headed by Barrow.

The other trustees Ruppert's brother, George, his brother-in-law, H. Garrison Silleck, Jr., of Greenwich, Conn., and Frederick E. Grant, an attorney.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Tampa, Fla., March 14 (AP)—The judgment may be a bit hasty, but some of the gentlemen who don't have to walk around a boat to decide it has two sides have come to the conclusion that young Myron McCormick is just the lad to play left field for the Cincinnati Reds.

They've seen just one side of him, but that's enough for them. They've seen a handsome, 190-pound six-footer whale the daylights out of the ball and race around center field, where Bill McKechnie has been playing him.

Yesterday, against the Cards, he got two spanking triples and a double, and that was just a sample of his work down here. Whether he is a morning glory who will wilt when the pitching gets hot remains to be seen, but Leo Miller, president of the Indianapolis Club who had him for three years, insists the boy will make the grade.

"I had him a year at Buffalo," Miller explains, "and he was at the Cleveland training camp in 1938, but Landis declared him a free agent on the grounds McCormick was covered up at Buffalo. Indianapolis signed him, and then I went to Indianapolis.

"He's a line drive hitter, and didn't get many home runs at Indianapolis as our fences there are 350 feet at the foul line and cut out sharply, so a long fly ball hitter is just another out. He seems to be hitting the ball harder down here."

Myron, nicknamed Mike, is an unassuming lad from Stockton, Calif., who has no illusions as to what it takes to be a Major Leaguer.

"I just hope I can make it," he says simply. "So far the pitching has been no different from what I looked at last year. I like centerfield, but will play anywhere they tell me."

Part of the skepticism concerning McCormick's future is due to the fact that, although he is a right-handed batter, most of his hits have been to right field, with some fouls popping into the right field bleachers.

The theory is that he is striking late on fast balls, and that when the balls really get fast he'll be swinging at the echo.

The case of Charley Keller is cited, however, to refute that theory. Keller, a left-handed hitter,, blasts them to all fields, but more often than not it is to left or center. He gets plenty of power in a late swing, and the same is true of McCormick. Some batters, including Joe DiMaggio, unconsciously wait until the last possible moment before slashing at a pitch.

Sunday School All-Stars End Moorefield Streak

Coach Henry Stroup's Sunday School All-Stars broke broke Moorefield Jr. High school's winning streak of 23 games Wednesday night at Moorefield, by defeating them 26 to 21.

The losers, who recently won the West Virginia Jr. High Regional championship, were ahead at the end of the first quarter 9 to 8, with the score at the half being tied at 13 all. The third quarter ended with Moorefield on top 21 to 17, but in the last quarter the All-Star quint held them scoreless while they were collecting nine points to win.

Ed Turner, captain of the Cumberland team, was high scorer for the evening with six field goals and two free throws for a total of 14 points. Leatherman was the loser's best, collecting eight points.

Baseball Teams Of Tri-State Loop Are Re-Organized

Seven School Circuit To Operate again This Season

The Tri-State Interscholastic Baseball Conference, which was formed last spring with seven schools in this district as members, was reorganized for the 1940 season at a meeting Wednesday at the Central Y. M. C. A.

The circuit will again consist of seven teams but Keyser High, which copped the championship last season, will not defend its title.

The setup at the present time is Allegany, Fort Hill and LaSalle of Cumberland, Paw Paw (W. Va.) High, Beall High of Frostburg, Hyndman (Pa.) High and Ridgeley (W. Va.) High.

Keyser will probably abandon baseball this season. Walter L. "Bill" Bowers, Allegany athletic director who was reelected conference president, announced that he understood that if Keyser failed to have a representative at Wednesday's session, the school would drop the sport this spring.

The Golden Tornado was not represented but a seven-team conference will again be in operation as Ridgeley was admitted to membership. No other schools applied for admittance.

Thomas Gilchrist Jr., was reelected secretary. It was agreed to start all weekday games at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Each school must play a minimum of eight games instead of six, as was the case last year, to be eligible for the championship.

The conference schedule was drawn up with each school arranging its card. The next meeting has been set for May 29 at the "Y" where an All-Star team for 1940 will be selected and plans for the following year discussed.

It was agreed that the home umpire would work behind the plate and the visitors' arbiter would officiate on the bases. Eligibility rules remain the same.

Fort Hill was represented by Coach and Athletic Director John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh, Bowers and Coach Hubert Radcliffe were Allegany's spokesmen and Brother Justin was LaSalle's delegate. Other representatives present were as follows:

Paw Paw, Coach Arnet Swisher; Beall, Coach Eddie Finzel; Hyndman, Coach Roscoe Wareham, and Ridgeley, Coach Hubert Price.

Bi-State Meets Tonight

The parade of baseball meetings will continue tonight with the Bi-State loop meeting at the Central "Y" at 8:30, while the Wills Creek Valley circuit will gather at the same place at 7:30 tomorrow evening.

Four clubs, Westvaco A. A., Keyser Moose, Cumberland and Hyndman, have met Bi-State franchise requirements, and the Midland Red Sox organization has indicated it will arrange to retain its berth at tonight's session. Frostburg and Lonaconing were in the Bi-State last season, but failed to send representatives to last week's confab at which Keyser was voted a berth.

Today's Bi-State program, in addition to the filling of open berths, calls for 1940 player contracts to be distributed and the election of a president to succeed Gene Gunning, sports editor of The Times, who has declined to serve for another season.

Nominations for Four Bowie Stakes To Close Tonight

Midnight Is Deadline for Entries for Features of Spring Meet

Bowie, Md., March 14.—Tomorrow midnight is a very important hour for horsemen on this side of the Atlantic, for it marks the end of the time allotted turfmen to make nominations for the four stakes to be programmed during the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association's meeting, which ushers in the 1940 Eastern racing season April 1.

General Manager Joseph A. Farrell, 317 Baltimore Life Building, Baltimore, Md., says that horsemen can wire or mail nominations to him. Any mail bearing a post mark prior to midnight tomorrow will be officially accepted, therefore horsemen throughout America and Canada still have time to nominate their "aces" for next month's stakes.

The $5,000 Rowe Memorial Handicap, three quarter mile sprint, for three year olds and upward, will be run Wednesday, April 3. On Saturday, April 6, the $5,000 Bowie Handicap, mile and seventy yards, for three year olds and upward, will be programmed by Race Secretary John B. Campbell. The $2,500 Bowie Kindergarten, half mile sprint, exclusively for two year olds, will be run Wednesday, April 10. The $5,000 Southern Maryland Handicap, mile and one sixteenth for three year olds and upward, will be run Saturday April 13, closing day of racing at this course.

General Manager Farrell boosted the Bowie Handicap from $3,500 to $5,000 and the Kindergarten from $2,000 to $2,500 this spring. As a result, horsemen throughout America are rushing in their nominations for both stakes, as well as the two other "five grand" events to be run here.

All signs point to everyone of the 1,200 stalls on the grounds, having an occupant by April 1. The overflow will be cared for at the Laurel and Pimlico tracks, which are within-easy riding distance of this plant. Other horsemen will stable at Bennings on the outskirts of Washington and ship here on days they have anything to race.

Interest Is Keen

Jesse Bennet, custodian of the jockeys' room, reports applications from 75 boys, who desire to ride during next month's sport.

Among the veteran riders to accept mounts here are Don Meade, Eddie Arcaro, Wayne Wright, "Moose" Peters, Joe Renick, "Rabbit" Dabson, Sam Renick, George Seabo and Al Shelhammer.

Hirsch Jacobs of New York, America's leading winning trainer for the past seven years; H. Guy Bedwell of Savage, Md., who topped the American list of trainers, seven times—six of them consecutively, both have representatives on the grounds. Before the end of the month, Jacobs will have around 22 horses quartered here, with Bedwell looking after 28 horses.

Both Jacobs and Bedwell will find the competition plenty stiff as such well known trainers as "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, Bill Mulholland, Herb Bundscho, Miss Mary Hirsch, Phil Reuter, Buster Bedwell, Lucius P. Harlan, J. P. (Sammy) Smith, Otto Bagley, Max Smart, Frank Garrett and Tony Pelleteri will all be striving for purses.

Flintstone A's To Meet

Flinstone, March 14—The Flintstone Athletic baseball team will elect officers and discuss plans for the 1940 season at a meeting tomorrow night in Dolly's garage.

Newspapermen of City Inaugurate New Dining Room

Gather at McGuire & Ricker Hostelry Soon Open to Public

Newspapermen of the city gathered last evening at a press club dinner to spread pre-opening cheer on the soon to be inaugurated McGuire & Ricker Dining Room, adjoining their stag bar, 78 Baltimore street. With the members of the Fourth Estate were several of the boxers who will take part in this evening's fight program at the state armory.

While formal speech-making was barred, impromptu talks were given by several members called upon in violation of the rule.

An appetizing dinner was served by the staff of the dining room which will be opened to the public next week. A preview of the new establishment was sufficient to give assurance that the new McGuire and Ricker menage will add much to the enjoyment of those who get pleasure from the good things of life in the way of properly prepared foods.

The menu consisted of hor d'ouvres, lettuce salad with roquefort cheese dressing, roast young turkey, dressing, candied sweet potatoes under baked apple, green peas, hot rolls, pumpkin pie with rum sauce, and coffee.

Those present under the genial patronage of James F. McGuire and Vic Ricker, proprietors, were: Frank Lee Carl, J. William Hunt, Harry H. Robinson, Richard P. McCardell, Eugene T. Gunning, Frank Werner, James Hale, T. Donald Shires, Fred McCamic, John Suter Kegg, J. Norton "Jack" Gallen, David H. Murrie, M. F. Prendergast and John W. Snyder all of this city, Jack O'Brien, Ken Overlin and Edward Darby of Washington, D. C., and Joe Lynch and Al Barnett of Plainfield, N. J.

32-Round Fight Card at Armory Tonight

Ken Overlin and "Butch" Lynch in 10-Round Main Go

Charlie Brant and Bob Smith Clash in Semi-Final

Niland, Walbert, Jackson, Parker, Franchi In Prelims

The Cumberland Athletic Club offers another pro-fight program at the State Armory here this evening when a 32-pound card headed by a ten-round main go between Ken Overlin, top-ranking middleweight, and Joe "Butch" Lynch of Plainfield, N. J.

The curtain-raiser, the first of two four-rounders, starts at 8:30 o'clock. A six-rounder and an eight-round semi-final are also on the five-bout card.

Overlin, who earned a title contention scrap with Cerefino Garcia at Madison Square Garden in May by winning 16 of 17 fights last year, has been training for tonight's ten-round headliner against Washington scrappers in the Huron gym.

Overlin, honored along with Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers by The Ring magazine for the "outstanding comebacks" of 1939, naturally rates a favorite over Lynch, but the New Jersey mauler is expected to give him a thorough workout. Lynch went seven rounds with Overlin in 1937 before losing by a technical knockout because of an eye injury, and dropped a split decision to Ken in 1938.

Local fans secured a definite line on Lynch this week when Wild Bill McDowell of Dallas, Texas, defeated two weeks ago by "Butch" at New Brunswick, N. J., decisioned Vic Finazzo, of Baltimore, over the eight-round route in Washington on Monday night. Finazzo fought Cleo McNeal, Canton (Ohio) negro, here earlier in the indoor season.

A strong local favorite, Charlie Brant, of Somerset, Pa., meets Bob Smith, rugged Pittsburgh negro light-heavyweight, in the eight-round semi-final. Brant, who lost to Ira Hughes, another Pittsburgh negro, here last month when cut over the right eye in the second round, is anxious to redeem himself by winning over Smith, a rough mauler who knocked out Harris on a Pittsburgh card several months ago.

Cumberland's Bill Niland has been promised a semi-final spot on the next C.A.C. card if he wins or makes a good showing in his six-round fight with Carl Turner, Fairmont (W.Va.) negro who holds the welterweight championship of that state. Niland has earned four-round and six-round verdicts and fought a six-round draw since losing a nod to Homer Jackson, Frostburg scrapper, about four months ago.

The first of the card's two four-rounders will start at 8:30. "Bucky" Walbert, of Cumberland, defeated by Jackson when they were amateurs plans to avenge that defeat in making his professional debut against the Mountain City middleweight. The other four-rounder will mark the first pro appearance of that veteran amateur, Delton Parker, against Ferdy Franchi in a battle of Cumberland featherweights. Parker scored victories over practically all the leading 126-pounders of Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Washington and other cities during his six-year amateur career.

Records Smashed At Dartmouth in Annual Carnival

Herbert Sets Quarter-Mile Mark--Woodruff Breaks Mile

Hanover, N. H., March 14 (AP)—Jimmy Herbert, New York University negro, erased two marks tonight when he opened Dartmouth's third annual record-smashing carnival by covering the quarter-mile distance in 48.4 seconds.

Herbert was clocked in 47.9 seconds for 400-meters. Tom Halpin of the Boston A. A. received credit for setting both marks when he turned in his 49.6 quarter in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1913. W. F. Koppisch equalled them in 1923 at Buffalo.

In adding two more indoor marks to his "600" record of 1:10.8, Herbert lapped his three Dartmouth pace-setters, Dick Howard, Bill Ford and Jay Harris, who were given five, 14 and 20 yard starts.

New York University's 880-yard relay team clipped five and one-tenth seconds off the accepted indoor record for that event when it defeated a Dartmouth four by 20 yards in 1:27.7.

The Violet speeders not only wiped out the mark of 1:32.8 set in 1930 but also was far under the unofficial record of 1:32 recently made by a Seton Hall quartet.

The fastest half-mile in history was run by John Woodruff, the Negro Olympic champion, as records continued to tumble. He was clocked in 1:47.7 for that distance, 1.5 seconds faster than the unofficial outdoor world record credited to England's Syd Wooderson.

Nationals Plan Revenge At All-Star Ball Game

By JOHN LARDNER

Tampa, Fla., March 14 (N.A.N.A.)—All unknown to the American League, a plot for revenge is being hatched in this temple of grapefruit baseball by those who have suffered at the hands of the Yankees, Robin Feller, and other American League desperadoes.

Technically, the all-star game this coming Sunday is for Finnish relief. A goodly crowd will be on hand, paying unlimited sums for the "five dollar" ringsides. A stout chunk of Finnish relief will undoubtedly accrue.

But the National Leaguers will also be playing for the relief of their own wounded feelings. Eight Yankees in the American League lineup will be the targets of five Cincinnati Reds, seeking to wipe out the memory of last autumn's massacre beside the Ohio. Mr. Ernest Lombardi, who was scuttled near home plate by Yankee thugs in the world series, will be glowering through his mask at Charlie Keller and Joe DiMaggio, who scuttled him.

Set On Revenge

If there is anything Ernest can do, with his bat or his brain, to pay these ruffians off, he will do it. The same applies to Mr. Paul Derringer, the Red pitcher, who came close to beating the Yanks twice last fall, but was robbed each time by the breaks.

Then the National League is planning a private party for Rob Feller, the young strongarm thrower from Cleveland. Feller hurt them badly in the midsummer all-star game last year.

"We were just getting under way when Feller came along," recalls Ford Christopher Frick, National League booster No. 1.

If you recall, there was a National League in progress — men on first and third, I think, and one out. At this crucial point, Tommy Bridges was yanked from the box and young Feller came ambling in from the bull pen. Knowing Robin's reputation for wildness in certain pinches, the National Leaguers leered and gripped their war clubs.

"This is it," they told each other.

Feller threw only one pitch that inning. He served his fast one to Arkie Vaughan, who rapped the ball sharply to right. Joe Gordon, playing second base for the American League, dove in front of it and scooped it over to Joe Cronin, coming in fast to cover second. On the dead run Cronin forced the runner from first and threw down to nip the fleet-footed Vaughan at first base. Feller's one pitch had produced a double play, and the rally was dead.

The National League never did catch up with Feller, who finished the ball game, getting faster every minute. Long after the crowd began to file toward the exits, Stanley Hack was still arguing with George Magerkurth, umpire at the plate, about the called third strike from Feller's arm that ended the game.

"I hear Hack is still out there," said Manager Joe McCarthy, undressing in the clubhouse. What does he know about that pitch? He never saw it."

Such Things Rankle

Things like that can rankle, and many National Leaguers still brood about the injustice of it all, including bullet-proof Bill Jurges, Giant shortstop, who got into trouble indirectly on Feller's account.

At the time Magerkurth called that third strike on Hach, Jurges, a member of the National League all-star squad, was sitting on the bench having apoplexy. He called Magerkurth everything he could think of, and Bill has a large vocabulary. After the game he continued to pop off.

"How do you like that?" he demanded of everyone in earshot. "A National League umpire playing traitor and robbing his own league!"

A few days later the storm of tempers broke. In a regular league game, Jurges spat in Magerkurth's face, and Magerkurth socked Jurges. They suspended bullet-proof Bill for ten days. The Giants promptly lost ten straight and were never heard of again.

Thus, all kinds of feuds and grudges trace back to the American League's arrogant domination of the National League. Feller is not the only villain of that heartbreaking double play who will be up there for the National League to shoot at Sunday. How about Gordon and Cronin? They made the play, didn't they? And they'll be there.

Oscar Vitt, Cleveland manager, says that Feller, his ace, will not be ready to pitch more than one inning.

"Which is all right with us," says the menacing Mr. Jurges. "Plenty can happen in one inning."

Plenty can happen in every inning of that particular all-star ball game. The National League is bringing its guns to the party.

Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., March 14 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians inaugurated their Grapefruit League campaign today by connecting for two home runs to scalp the Syracuse Chiefs, 6 to 1.

Clarence Campbell, a rookie trying to make the Indians' squad as their fifth outfielder, blasted a three-run circuit clout over the right field wall in the sixth inning.

Ray Mack, leading candidate for the Indians' second-base job, opened the scoring in the second with a 360-foot homer over the left-center fence.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 14 (AP)—Manager Jimmy Dykes' scheme to embarrass the Chicago Cubs with rookie pitching back fired today as the Cubs routed the Chicago White Sox, 14 to 7, in the inaugural exhibition game for each club.

All but one of the Cub runs came in the first two innings as the National Leaguers coupled ten hits, including catcher Al Todd's home run, with eight bases on balls and three wild pitches.

Dragon Quintet Thumps Kitchen Outfit 54 to 33

Winners To Meet Collegians Sunday for Independent Cage Title

Coach Kenneth "Hank" Lindsay's classy Dragon basketball team gained the right to meet the strong Cumberland Collegians Sunday afternoon for the independent cage championship of the city by mauling Sam's Candy Kitchen five to the tune of 54-33 last night on the SS. Peter & Paul School floor in the finals of an elimination series to determine an opponent for Art Slocum's quintet.

Sunday's title game will get underway at 3 o'clock following a consolation tussle between the Kaplon Clothiers and Garrett & Zilch, the two teams eliminated in the first round last Sunday.

A 25-point splurge by the Dragons in the second period of last night's joust sent the Lindsay outfit into a lead it never relinquished. The winners trailed 11-6 at the end of the opening session but bounded back following the rest period to bury the South Cumberland representatives under an 11-field goal barrage and leave the floor at the halfway mark leading 31 to 17.

The Dragons seemed content to retain possession of the leather in the third heat, passing the pill around in expert fashion and confining a good deal of their pass attack to the back court. The Candy Kids, despite the terrific shelling of the Dragons in the second round, managed to fight back and outscore the winners 7 to 6 during the frame.

Athey and Schaidt Star

Four fielders by Ed Athey and three by lanky Bill Schaidt led the Dragons to a 17-point last quarter in which the losers were held to six tallies.

Schaidt, with seven goals and 14 points and Athey with 12 counters on six buckets were the heavy guns for the Dragons while Lefty "Chet" Collins was the entire show for the losers with 13 points.

Coach Lindsay was well pleased with his team's performance last night but would make no statement concerning Sunday's battle. After Sunday's game the Dragons are booked to meet Allegany High School's city and WMI League champions, the game being scheduled for next Tuesday night on the Campobello court. Last night's lineups:

Speedy Antelope

Antelopes running on dry lake beds have frequently been paced at 45 miles an hour by Bureau of Biological Survey field men. An old buck during the Fall mating season sometimes manages to attain a speed of 50 or 55 miles an hour for short spurts.—From the National Wildlife Federation.

Annapolis Youth Will Get Tryout with Cards

Annapolis, March 14 (AP) — Raymond Bunker, eighteen-year-old Annapolis athlete, was in the middle of a boy's dream come true today—he has a tryout with a Major League baseball team slated.

The St. Louis Cardinals, training at Columbus, Ga., invited Bunker to work out with them this spring. He leaves Saturday.

The husky kid attracted favorable notice from scouts last year when he murdered the ball while playing centerfield for Annapolis high school and sandlot teams.

Unnamed Lakes

Most of us think the United States is pretty well settled and there are no uncharted lands. To some extent, this is true, but, according to the Michigan Department of Conservation, there are some 1,000 unnamed lakes in the state. Most of them are located in the wilderness area of the North—From the National Wildlife Federation.

New York—Few big league managers have hopes of sharing a World Series pot o' gold but every pilot figures he has a chance in the spring treasure hunts.

That's why these baseball bosses head for Florida, California and Texas training bases in high spirits. For among the 20-odd youngsters cavorting around their camp may be the prize gem of the rookie crop.

True the richer clubs have corralled the better looking prospects. But occasionally they miss. Sometimes an apparently mediocre minor leaguer finds himself and becomes a star almost overnight. And so managers of also-ran clubs feel they have some chance of hitting the jackpot. For instance, the seventh place Boston Bees came up with one of the best freshmen last year in shortstop Eddie Miller.

More than 300 eager recruits are going through their paces on sunburned diamonds these days. Perhaps a fifth of them will make the big league grade. Maybe four or five will jump into the star class within a year or so. But during these early days of spring training only about a dozen and a half have fairly definite assurance they'll be with the club come May 1.

Dominic, youngest of the DiMaggios, is one. Skipper Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox indicated he would string along with Joe's little brother when he sold the veteran Joe Vosmik to Brooklyn. Outfielder Dominic hit .360 for San Francisco last year and scouts tab him as a sure shot. Brother Vince, who flopped with the Boston Bees, gets another chance with Cincinnati after a fine year at Kansas City.

The New York Giants plan to go to bat with a three-quarters rookie infield. Slow fielding Zeke Bonura at first base has been shelved for young Norman (Babe) Young. Mickey Witek from Newark will be at second and Glen Stewart or George Myatt from Jersey City at third base with the experienced Bill Jurges at short.

Young hit .364 for Knoxville, lost the Southern association batting championship by a percentage fraction and was voted most valuable player. Witek, all-star shortstop, led the International loop in hits. Stewart has the inside track over Myatt.

A pair of young pitchers—Marvin Breuer and Tom Reis from Kansas City — apparently have the best prospects among the Yankee recruits. Both are right handers and each won 17 games a year ago. Mike Chartak, who hit .342 for Newark, may make the outfield squad. John Sturm, Kansas City first sacker, has an outside chance of ousting Babe Dahlgren, while Lou Blair from Newark may beat Bill Knickerbocker out of his infield utility job.

Hal Reese, Louisville shortstop who cost around $75,000 worth of cash and talent, ranks as Brooklyn's No. 1 rookie. Leader Leo Durocher says he's going to do a bit of shortstopping himself but that the fast, base-stealing Reese will see plenty of action.

Al Piechota, who won 16 and lost 7 last year for Kansas City and pitched the only no-hit game in the American Association in five years seems sure to stick with the Boston Bees.

A 6-foot-9 hurler, John Alex Gee from Syracuse, and a couple of flychasers, Bob Elliott from Toronto and Maurice Van Robays from Montreal, are likely to play for Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals, already boasting a fine pitching staff, may retain one or more of this quartet of Houston tossers — Francis Joseph Barrett, Harry Brecheen, Dick Dickcon and Ernest Daniel White.

The Washington Senators paid around $40,000 to Minneapolis for Shortstop Jimmy Pofahl and when Clark Griffith shells out that kind of dough he figures he has a sure thing.

Deacon Bill McKechnie expects Joe Beggs to pitch regularly for Cincinnati. Beggs came from Newark. He had a trial with the Yanks.

The Cubs think they can use Dominic Dallessandro, the San Diego outfielder who won the Pacific Coast batting championship with .368. Dominic, failed to make good a year or so ago with the Red Sox.

Herb Hash, who won 22 for Minneapolis; Jim Bagby, who went well for Boston two years ago and later was sent to Little Rock, and Woody Rich, early season sensation of 1939 who went to Louisville when he developed arm trouble look like possibilities with the Red Sox.

Freddie Hutchinson, last season's most ballyhooed rookie pitcher, and Tom Seats, who won 21 for Sacramento, may hang on with Detroit.

While these rookies rate top billing here are some who may come through.

Taffeta pin crackers jumped into a two-game lead in the second half chase of the Celanese Warehouse Mixed League this week at the Savoy by scoring a sweep win over the Woolen combination. The first half champion Rayon crew eked out a 2-1 win over the Crepes in the other match.

The Crepes were victorious by a 108-pin margin in the second tilt. Charley Hoenicka and Page, with sets of 379 and 378, respectively, paced the Rayons while Harry Bowman's 434 was highest for the losers. The summaries:

Unlucky Birthdays

South Bend, Ind. (AP) — Coach George Keogan of Notre Dame is looking for basketball talent born any leap year day.

The reason: Birthdays just aren't lucky for Irish cage teams.

George Sobek, Notre Dame sophomore star, celebrated his birthday Feb. 10 and N. Y. U. trounced Notre Dame that night. Captain Mark Ertel observed his twenty-first birthday Feb. 26. Butler beat the Irish 39 to 38 that night. Those were the first games Notre Dame had lost since Jan. 1.

Bees Down Cards

Bradenton, Fla., March 14 (AP)—Boston's Bees beat out a tropical thunderstorm with a three-run outburst in the seventh inning today to score a 6-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Tom Earley, using a new side-arm delivery, pitched the last four innings for the Bees and got credit for the victory.

Catch Fish with No Hook

A northern Indiana angler, J. W. Souder by name, reports he catches catfish without using a hook. He ties pieces of beef on a line, and when the fish grabs the meat, he deftly pulls it into the boat. According to Mr. Souder, you must not let the fish's tail touch anything or else it will let go. The reason for this does not seem to be clear, but maybe it's just a fish story.—From the National Wildlife Federation.

Deer Make Sure Of Their Vitamins

Crystal City, Tex., (AP) — Crystal City's winter garden district, known as the world's "greatest spinach producing area," now offers hunters spinach-fattened deer.

The spinach farms have been carved from large ranches populated by thousands of deer. Ranchers report the deer will walk ten miles to get a bite of spinach. They thrive upon it.

Insanity Increased by War and Depression

Pueblo, Colo., (AP)—Worry during a decade of depression and war has given the nation the "mental jitters," says Dr. F. H. Zimmerman, superintendent of the Colorado State hospital for insane.

"One in ten persons is certain to have some sort of mental sickness during his or her lifetime and one in 20 will be bad enough to land in an institution," he says.

Modern medicine, that has increased life expectancy from 40 to 60 years, is partly responsible for an increase in mental illnesses, he thinks, but uncertain world conditions also play a part. He said insanity is more frequent "as humanity grows older."

If automobile tires are not kept inflated to the proper pressure, blowouts, resulting from breaks in the sidewalls, are likely to occur unexpectedly.

Big Revue Arrives Here For Strand Engagement

The Funzafire revue of fifty persons arrived in Cumberland today to open a two-day engagement at the Strand theater. The big show, headed by Benny Meroff and his orchestra, the thirteen "Southern Gentlemen of Rhythm," will give four performances each day.

Also in the cast will be found Ken and Ray Paige, acrobatic stars; the Wynn twins, light heavyweight champions of comedy; Dolly Beil and the four Buster Browns, aeromaniacs; Buddy Green, billed as the "Screwy Screwball"; the "Eight Daughters of Satan" in a fantasy of steps; Betty Atkinson in a merry-go-round of rhythm; Al Spiro, musical comedy star, in "Merry Mad Moments," and Rex Weber, a ventriloquist assisted by Leo Leonard.

The screen attraction will be the hilarious Jones Family in the comedy, "Young as You Feel."

The engagement is limited to two days, today and tomorrow.

"Blondie Brings Up Baby," newest of the hilarious Columbia comedies based upon Chic Young's popular cartoon strip characters, will be the attraction at the Strand theater beginning Sunday.

"Blondie," first of the series, was hailed with delight by the legion of newspaper readers following the daily adventures of the Bumsteads. "Blondie Meets the Boss" and "Blondie Takes a Vacation" sent Blondie, Dagwood and Baby Dumpling soaring into first place as the screen's most popular "family."

The newest of the series, rated also as the best, deals with Baby Dumpling's entering school and is enacted by Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake and Larry Simms, the brilliant merry-making trio.

An added attraction is the "March of Time" release of the Vatican of Pius XII.

Samuel Goldwyn's production of "Raffles" is showing at the Maryland. The film, starring David Niven in the title role, with lovely Olivia de Havilland as his leading lady, provides mystery-melodrama at its top-notch best. Directed by Sam Wood, "Raffles" was filmed from the screenplay by John Van Druten and the late Sidney Howard.

The story of "Raffles" is the story of a gentleman crook, a suave society man who leads a life of secret crime for the fun and adventure. Known as the Amateur Cracksman, he has been baffling Scotland Yard with his daring and spectacular robberies for months. And then, just as he is about to withdraw from his dangerous career, he furnishes the Yard with its first and only clue. From then on, the speedy action carries the story to the beautiful country estate of Lady Melrose where the famous emerald necklace is stolen and a chase to London begins.

Unfolded against backgrounds of pictorial beauty and dramatic highlights, "Raffles" was directed with speed and humor, but its most characteristic quality is its ever-mounting suspense.

Embassy Has Western Thriller and Mystery

Tim McCoy, whose latest starring vehicle, the big-thrill western titled "Trigger Fingers," is scheduled to open today at the Embassy Theater, has earned a well-deserved reputation as rifle and revolver shot. Also the star is recognized as a leading authority on firearms, and one of his favorite hobbies is collecting such weapons.

Tim has gathered together hundreds of specimens of pistols and revolvers, guns and ancient and modern, ranging from flintlocks of the American Revolutionary era, to the latest magazine type evolved in United States factories, as well as those of foreign make. Some of these possess historical significance, in the case of a carbine, a short-barreled rifle of the kind carried by United States cavalrymen on the Western frontier in 1870. This carbine belonged to one of General Custer's band, which were slaughtered to a man, by Sitting Bull's Indian warriors on June 24, 1876.

The second feature on the bill will be the mystery drama, "Murder on Diamond Row," starring Edmund Lowe and Constance Cummins.

Range War Feature Is Offered at Garden

One of the tragedies of the old West—the bloody feuds of the cattle country—is brought to life in Columbia's "The Stranger from Texas," Charles Starrett's starring vehicle at the Garden theater. Starrett is seen as a young United States marshal assigned to keep law and order in a county during one such feud.

The cattlemen, first to conquer the West, were used to having the same broad grazing lands that the buffalo once enjoyed. But soon the range grew a little more crowded and more settlers meant fences, homesteads, sheep and the gradual closing in of civilization. A rough, hard-living, hard-working group of men, the cattle ranchers tried to run settlers and "squatters" off land they considered rightfully theirs.

It was not until the pacifying influence of Eastern civilization had a firm grip on western life that the range wars came to an end.

Lorna Gray is seen as the daughter of a cattleman to whom Starrett, the marshal, is attracted when he arrives in town to stop a devastating feud which has grown out of the activities of "rustlers."

Huntz Hall, charter member of the Dead End Kids, is featured with Billy Halop in Universal's "Call a Messenger," also showing at the Garden with the "Little Tough Guys," Robert Armstrong, Mary Carlisle and Anne Nagel.

The War department reports that United States exports of arms, ammunition and implements of war in 1939 had a total value of $102,298,298.

A BARREL OF FUN

DAD'S JUST A BOY AGAIN

Youre "Young As You Feel" is what the Jones Family have been telling Dad Jed Prouty — and apparently he's fallen for their line in the new Twentieth Century-Fox comedy of that title, which comes to the Strand theater on Friday and Saturday. Here we have, left to right, June Carlson, Prouty, Florence Roberts, and Spring Byington, a few of the Joneses who go to New York to take over the "Gay White Way."

Former Pastor Dies in Baltimore

Mt. Savage, March 14—The Rev. Lonier, 79, died Tuesday at his home on Lakeside avenue, Baltimore. The Rev. Lonier was pastor of the Methodist church, Mt. Savage, for six years. He left here in 1923.

While in Mt. Savage he erected the concrete wall and built the sidewalks around the church. Later he was rector of Curtis Bay Methodist church, Baltimore. He retired from active service in the ministry in 1926.

He is survived by one daughter, Miss Dora Lonier.

The Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Company was called to extinguish a flue fire at the home of Charles Grady, Old Row, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Posture's Solution

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN THE subject of posture comes up where women congregate, the young 'uns are always asking "How do you get it?" There is an answer to that question, simple enough for even the young fry to understand. It has to do with what is called the vital center.

Let a girl place her fingers between her breasts, move them downward to where the ribs part and go their own ways. That is the vital center. Keep that portion of the svelte anatomy extended and the body takes the correct pose. The abdomen tucks itself away against the back bones; the chest becomes expanded; shoulders stay where they should; the back straightens.

The simple habit of holding the tummy flat will strengthen the muscles of the torso. One should look neat below the waistline; that flatness has an excellent effect upon the health because a flattened tummy helps the internal organs to function normally; holds them in place.

Correct posture does not mean rigidity. Far from it. There should be ease as well as beautiful lines. Ease does not mean slouchiness of carriage, but softness of outline. The body must express vitality, energy. To do that the backbone must be kept tall, with a nip-in at the waistline.

ANNE GWYNNE . . . whose correct posture expresses her vitality.

Though millions are spent on rouge every year, there are girls who sob and beller because they flush easily. Older individuals think a girl looks pretty cute when the flush spreads over the alabaster cheek. Not the flushers, however.

The rosy glow is a nervous reaction of the tiny capillaries close to the surface of the skin. The blush, like other beauty assets, begins in the mind. It is doubtful if any cosmetic will do a bit of good.

The trouble with flushing is that the redness doesn't always know where to stop. It may include the forehead and the ears as well as the cheeks, and then it isn't so good. But what can one do? Not a thing.

Mrs. Edward Norris remains critically ill at her home.

Move To 'Hill'

Washington, March 14 (AP)—The business of lining up absentee voters for the primary and general elections has brought the West Virginia Democratic Club to "the hill." The club established new headquarters in a business building near the Senate office building. Previously it had operated from a downtown hotel.

The poet Tasso asserts that carrier pigeons were used during the siege of Jerusalem in 1099, and they were in use during the crusades of St. Louis in 1250.

School Bells Will Ring in April For England's Forgotten Pupils

Some of Britain's evacuated children (one with an American Indian bonnet) enjoy learning croquet from Lady Wood, wife of Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood.

AP Feature Service

By JACK CULMER

London—Britain rushed her children from the cities last September, forgetting about schools at the moment of impending war. Now the nation is confronted with the gigantic problem of getting the youngsters back into classrooms, wherever they are.

It was public opinion that led the government to order enforcement of the school attendance law, scrapped in the confusion of evacuation of children to rural areas.

Many city schools, taken over by air raid precautions and civil defense authorities when war started, were turned into first aid posts or drill halls.

Main Problem Untouched

But evacuation wasn't compulsory. Thousands of children remained in vital "target" areas of London and other big cities and thousands more who had been evacuated returned home. These children lacked regular instruction. Scattered attempts to arrange part-time lessons in private homes left the main problem untouched. Earl de la Warr disclosed, in the House of Lords early in February, that of nearly 1,250,000 children in towns, about 400,000 were receiving no schooling.

To halt what has been described as "the deterioration that children are suffering through the suspension of schooling," the Board of Education has decided to enforce compulsory education in evacuation areas. Local authorities have been instructed to act as soon as enough accommodations—full or part-time—are available, but not later than the start of the April school term.

Wait On Bomb Shelters

Authorities will be permitted to admit children to schools where work has started on air raid shelters, but de la Warr said he didn't think authorities would feel justified in prosecuting parents for non-attendance of children before bomb shelters were completed.

De la Warr said that, in addition to the 400,000, "official evacuees" in reception areas, there were "many tens of thousands of unofficial evacuees." Between 80 and 90 per cent were going to school full time, he added.

Schooling recreation areas was put on a makeshift basis by setting aside a few hours daily for instruction in local schools. Curtailment of hours of instruction for country children and their city guests caused many complaints.

Mixed Classes, Mixed Blessing

AP Feature Service

Glasgow, Scotland—The war has broken down traditional division of sexes in Scottish schools and wartime evacuation has resulted in opening of the country's first co-educational boarding school.

Moved from five Glasgow secondary schools to a country hotel, 200 boys and girls share classrooms and recreation grounds although they occupy separate living oroms.

Dr. W. G. Merry, heard of one of the evacuated schools, said that if the idea were accepted generally "the war will not prove to be an unmixed blessing."

Discover Grave Of Mose Stepp, Indian Fighter

Revolutionary War Veteran Known for Great Strength

Laura, Ky., March 14 (AP) — Unearthing of the grave of Mose Stepp, Revolutionary war veteran and Indian fighter, believed to have been the oldest man who ever lived in Kentucky, was disclosed here.

A road crew, working in a field on the Tom Staton farm, near the head of lonely Pigeon Roost creek, uncovered a time-worn headstone which read:

"To the memory of Mose Stepp, Revolutionary war veteran B. 1735 D. 1855. Age 120 Yrs."

The letters, crudely carved with hammer and chisel, were easily legible.

The Rev. Robert Fields was first to appreciate the importance of the discovery, recalling that his grandmother often recounted the feats, some almost legendary, of a Mose Stepp, whose funeral she attended on December 13, 1855.

"The man was a giant," Fields said.

"She (Field's grandmother) told me that he had once been captured by Indians, that it took six Indians to hold him as they prepared to burn him at the stake."

The development of this story was that the Indians finally nailed his ears to the tree, but that Stepp broke loose and escaped.

"I saw the holes in his ears the day he lay in his casket at the graveside," Fields said his grandmother told him.

Descendants of the pioneer have come forward since the discovery and are arranging to build a protecting wall around the 85-year old grave. One family spokesman said Stepp family annual reunions would probably be held at the spot hereafter.

Nice Gesture

It is a nice gesture but not necessary that, after you have been a house guest, you send a gift to your hostess. If you cannot afford such a gift, best not give one, but write her a nice letter of note of appreciation. This latter is a "must."

Child Should Be Checked Now for Rickets Disease

Lack of Sunlight in Winter Is Cause of Peculiar Ailment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Have your children been examined carefully this spring? It has been a hard winter and they have probably been getting less sun and exercise than usual. Be sure that they haven't any signs of the great spring disease of children, which is rickets.

Rickets is a disease peculiar to childhood. It is caused by lack of vitamin D, which is manufactured in the body by exposure to sunlight. It can usually be prevented or cured by the use of food products containing the vitamin. Vitamin D is fat-soluble and is, therefore, found in oils, particularly fish-liver oils —cod-liver oil, halibut-liver oil, salmon-liver oil, etc. It can also be obtained in an artificially irradiated vegetable oil.

Children vary, however, in their need for vitamin D. They vary, therefore, in their need for sunlight and for cod-liver oil. Those with dark skin, particularly, need more because the dark skin filters out the sun rays which produce vitamin D. Even if a child has had protective measures during the winter, it is well to think of these variations and to examine all of them under your care, especially for rickets.

Nutritional Disease

Rickets is a nutritional disease which affects, particularly, the bones and the digestive apparatus.

The first symptoms may be slight digestive disturbances, so slight as hardly to be thought worthy of notice. The appetite is finicky; there are little attacks of regurgitation of food and diarrhea; the stools are clay-colored and offensive. The weight, however, may mysteriously remain stationary.

Attacks of sweating, especially sweating around the head, are significant. If the child's pillow is wet in the morning, it means something. The sweating attacks recur during sleep, and sometimes to gain relief the child kicks off the bed clothes and catches cold.

The rickety child is tender. (I am speaking now of the early stages of rickets). The bones have not grown properly and lifting or changing position may cause a crying spell and a reaction of irritation out of all proportion to the amount of disturbance.

Late Stage Symptoms

Of course, in the later stages, when you have a fully developed case, the diagnosis is easy. The child looks pale, the eyes protrude and the whites are chalky white. The abdomen is distended and the chest shows the series of enlargements at the junction of the ribs and the rib cartilages known as the "rachitic rosary." The spine may show a curvature and the breastbone sticks outward.

Treatment should be based upon the liberal use of properly standardized cod-liver oil. By "properly standardized" is meant cod-liver oil which meets the standards of the U. S. Pharmacopeia. There should be exposure to sunshine and fresh air. The child should not be allowed to walk or crawl until it is certain that the bones are strong enough and that deformities will not result. Besides this, plenty of good food of all varieties, fresh in character, should be administered.

High School Editors To Meet In April

Huntington, W. Va., March 14 (AP)—Between 500 and 600 high school newspaper editors and their fellow workers will attend the fourteenth annual convention here April 12 and 13 of the United High School Press of West Virginia, says W. Page Pitt.

Pitt, head of the school of journalism of Marshall college and founder of the association, said the attendance this year is expected to be the greater in the group's history. Additional student editors from Kentucky and Ohio are expected.

Problems of editorial policy, of type, display, photographs and of student-faculty cooperation usually are the subjects of the principal addresses. Pitt said he hoped to have some nationally-known newspapermen address the sessions this year.

A banquet is one of the features. Officers are President Joseph J. Newman, of the Wayne high school, and Vice President Betty Gay Brumbaugh, of Morgantown.

Leaves Million Dollars In Life Insurance

Dayton, O., March 14. (AP)—John H. Barringer, 57, one of the few men known to carry $1,000,000 worth of life insurance, died last night. He had been ill since an automobile accidents several weeks ago.

One of Dayton's foremost industrialists, Berringer was a long-time associate of the late John W. Patterson in the National Cash Register Co. He started as a clerk and rose to be vice president and general manager.

West Virginia Man With Byrd Expedition

Welch, W. Va., March 14 (AP) — The short-wave radio at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Odom of nearby Boissevain is kept turned on the greater part of the the time now.

Their son, Howard, 25, is with the Byrd expedition to the South Pole and his parents are anxious to pick up every scrap of word of the group.

Howard graduated from the Welch high school in 1933, enlisted in the navy and was sent immediately to the naval radio school for specialized training. He volunteered for the South Pole expedition because of his skill in radio work and was accepted immediately.

Letter Writing Quite Important In Many Ways

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Everyone who is not a thirty-third degree moron can learn to write a good letter. When the boy or girl friend is miles away a brightly, well-written letter is an anchor to windward, which prevents straying.

I'm always glad to hear from readers. The more letters I get, the more pleased I am. Yet sometimes I wonder if girls and boys write to their sweethearts with the same "pale and wan" pencils with which they write to me. I put on my strongest pair of glasses and work as laboriously to decipher the communication as an archeologist facing Egyptian hieroglyphics.

Please don't misinterpret this hint. Write to me in pencil if you will, but please see that it's black enough to make a mark. But don't write to your best young man or your girl friend with a pencil suffering from anemia. Ten to one, the beloved object will put it aside until there is plenty of time for deciphering the elusive characters. Often that time doesn't come.

Delightful Letters

Picking up the morning paper a day or two ago, I read the headline, "Mail Romance Lasts Fifty Years." The story went on to say that HE wrote HER two letters. In the second he proposed. SHE wrote HIM two letters, and in the second she accepted. They met for the first time and were married in 1890. His letter was delightful; her answer even more delightful. And wonderful to relate, they wrote with good black ink, and no maginifying glasses were required to decipher the script. That was all there was to the courtship of Mr. and Mrs. John Melack, who have just celebrated their golden wedding anniverysary.

There are so many assets that make for success, not only in love but in business, that are to be had for the asking and are so often overlooked. Everyone can have a good voice. Neatness—daintiness—is frequently the equivalent of beauty, and as you were reminded in the beginning, everyone who is not a positive moron can write good letters.

Use Cream or White

Decent stationary can be bought at any Five-and-Ten. Pass up the pinks, green and blues in favor of unlined cream or white paper. Invest in a bottle of ink and a good pen. And luck go with you. And then, perhaps, like Mr. and Mrs. Melack, you will be celebrating your golden wedding fifty years from now, with someone you charmed as a correspondent.

When you write to me, I don't in the least object to pencil or a page torn from a lined composition book, if the pencil makes a mark. But don't take these chances when you want to make an impression or are writing for a job.

"I thought she was at least fourth grade," a boy wrote to me, "but her letters would have shamed the kindergarten. Besides, I couldn't take a day off to read it." And there, like smoke, went up the romance of the pretty girl whom he had met at a dance. When she wrote him, as he had asked, she affected a cure in her first letter. Please don't let that happen to you.

California Tops Old Seven-County View

San Francisco (AP)—Although Mount Diabali, across San Francisco Bay, rises only 3,849 feet, the California Parks Department says the view from its summit takes in a greater area of land and water than is visible from any other point in the world. Thirty-five counties may be seen.

The sweeping view is partly accounted for by the fact that such distant, lofty summits as Mount Shasta, Mount Whitney, Mount Lassen and Half Dome are visible.

A museum is under construction on the mountain's summit.

Four languages are spoken in Switzerland. Three are official—French, German and Italian, but the oldest is the rheto-Roman language, which is almost the same as that spoken 2,000 years ago at the court of Charlemagne.

HEADS CCC—James J. McEntee (above) took over directorship of Civilian Conservation corps, succeeding the late Robert Fechner. McEntee had been assistant director.

THUMB FUN—Painter Thomas Hart Benton's baby daughter Jessie was a little perplexed by that haircut, too; for when Painter John Steuart Curry (right) visited the Bentons at their Kansas City home, Jessie popped thumb into mouth, sat on her mother's lap and just stared. Curry tried the thumb business, but shifted back to his pipe.

RAW! RAW! RAW!—This left to the face with a ripe tomato was one of the more delicate punches dished up by "catsup cuties" when they battled in a free-for-all tomato fight at Dania, Fla. It was part of annual festival.

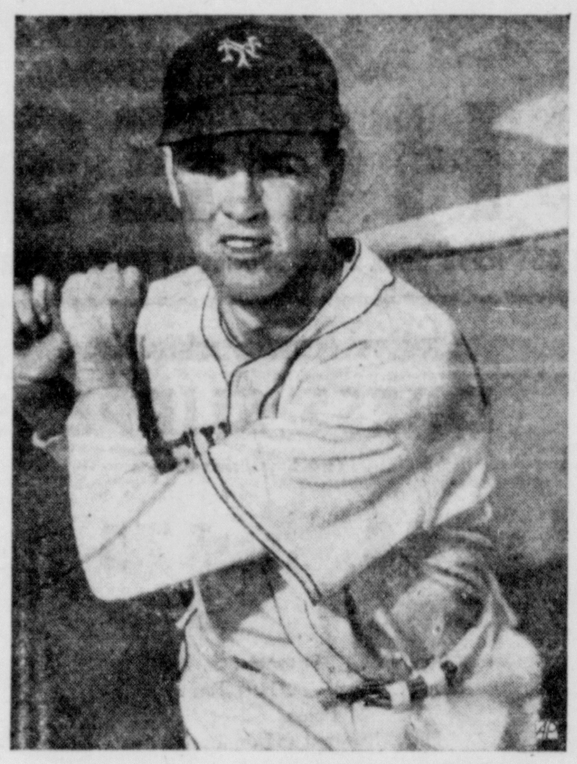

CANADA ISOLATES ENEMIES—In grim Kananaskis internment camp (above), high in the Rockies west of Calgary, Canada confines her prisoners of war. It's one of two camps established for the dominion's alien enemies. This guard tower overlooks the compound where prisoners are quartered.

ONE OF TWO—Mexico's first woman diplomat is Carmen Baez (above), 29, attache in the Mexican embassy at Washington. She's one of two women holding posts in the foreign diplomatic corps stationed at the nation's capital.

POINTING'S EXCUSABLE—Pardon Tom Yawkey if he points his wife's attention (above) to some antic of the Boston Red Sox, because the 37-year-old financier has laid a lot of his vast fortune on the line to develop the Boston club into a pennant contender. Both he and Mrs. Yawkey are rabid fans. She's the former Elise Sparrow of Birmingham, Ala.

GIANT KILLER—Training with New York Giants at Winter Haven, Fla., slugger John Rucker (above) hopes for regular berth by extending .346 clip he batted for Atlanta last season. He swings from left, comes from Alpharetta, Ga.

COULD BE—But it's not the idea for an Easter bonnet the Egyptian woman displays. In baskets, she and hundreds like her carried away the dust under which archaeologists found the mummy and riches of Psu Sennes, ancient Egyptian king.

TEN LITTLE BOOTS AND HOW THEY GREW—Boots, a Cocker spaniel, was proud of the ten pups she bore, but the bountiful litter posed quite a crowding problem at lunch time. Boots' patient Baltimore owner had to teach the pups to eat out of plates, but rather than starve they learned quickly.

URGED—Friends are pressing Gen. Robert E. Wood (above), executive of a Chicago mail order house, to run for the U. S. Senate. A life-long Republican, he voted for Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936. Wood supervises a $600,000,000-a-year business.

MAN POWERED FOR WAR—Through snow-covered country too rugged for motorized warfare this Swedish soldier, member of an army ski unit, is tugging a machine gun mounted on a specially built sled. Caught between the warring powers, Sweden kept her army ever ready for action while her statesmen led efforts to bring peace between Russia and Finland.

JURY—Sitting as a one-man grand jury, Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson (above), of Detroit, delved for six months into affairs of Detroit and Wayne county officials before returning a series of indictments charging graft and official corruption.

'SLACKING'—Leading a contingent of Florida winter vacationers who are strong for slacks is Mrs. Francis Warren Pershing, shown at Palm Beach wearing softly shirred slacks which are topped with a lighter shade bolero, banded to match.

SMELLS LIKE SPRING—Manley (Stub) Spear, 9 1 was sure that spring had arrived when his pet skunk "Jimmie" roused himself and came out of the chair where he'd been hibernating since last fall. Sitting on his pet's winter quarters, Stub celebrates the end of winter by offering "Jimmie" a bowl of milk. Neighbors at Medfield, Mass., are a little wary.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

I, Bill Strickland, am suspected in the murder of my friend, Alfred Markham, rich young jeweler, at a party in the Rio Vista clubhouse. Jerry Montcalm, another friend, although he is engaged to Muriel Benson, the girl I had once hoped to marry, is another suspect, because it was he who first stumbled over the body in the moonlit garden at the tip of the river peninsula on which the clubhouse stands. Captain of Detectives Clyde McDonald decides to test my alibi that I was upstairs when Markham supposedly was killed. He sends me up, to time my actions. But I am desperate. I remember that I dropped my knife in the garden. Afraid that it will be damning evidence against me, I decide to get down into the garden somehow, and retrieve the knife before it is found by the police or by Coroner Silver.

Arms like steel clamped around me, pinioning my hands to my sides.

CHAPTER SEVEN

THE VERY difficulties in the way of my descending to the garden comprised the strength of my alibi, for if I could get down into the garden now the police would say I could also have gotten down to kill Markham, I told myself. Perhaps by finding a way down now I would destroy my alibi. But I must take a chance.

There was only one exit that might be unguarded—the kitchen door on the north side of the lower story. The cook and waitress had been sitting there earlier in the night. They might be gone now. There was no stairway down to the kitchen, except the one up which I had come, but there was a light well at the end of the hall, and I judged by its location that the kitchen opened into it.

I ran on tiptoe to the end of the hall and opened the window into the light well. Yes, there was a light shining out of the window directly below me. It seemed to be the right place for the kitchen—and I heard no voices.

Taking this only chance which was open to me, I slipped through the upper window and hung by my hands as far down as I could reach, feeling with my toes until I located the top of the window below. Then gripping a water pipe I lowered myself hand under hand to the kitchen window sill and looked in. There was not a soul in sight. The dirty dishes were piled on the tables as though they had been left until tomorrow.

Luckily, on account of the warm night and the heat of cooking, the window from the light well into the kitchen had been left open. I crawled through it, dropped to the floor and sped swiftly to the outer door. A moment later I was out under the stars beside the river, in the deep shadow of the northwest corner of the building.

Remembering what St. Clair had said about the path around the north wing at low tide, I took off my shoes, hid them in the ash can at the kitchen door, pulled my trouser legs up over my knees and waded into the cold water. Feeling my way along the wall, I found the footing solid underneath and gained the dry land at the northwest corner of the clubhouse without getting into any water more than a foot deep.

I let my trouser legs down again and peered around the corner into the moonlight of the garden. One of the police officers was walking slowly back and forth by the lily pond, studying the ground.

He was so intent on his search that I skirted around behind him quietly in my bare feet and gained the rose arbor without attracting his attention.

My heart had quickened its beat. My time was going rapidly. Jerry came out on schedule and walked toward the lily pond to re-enact the finding of the body. The police officer nearly upset the program by detaining him.

It was now or never. While they argued I felt hastily about in the grass in the arbor where I knew the knife had fallen. It was not there.

I remembered exactly where it had lain, beside a large white stone. Had someone else found it?

Jerry was going back into the clubhouse. I had not even a second to spare. In fact, the odds were now against my being able to get back upstairs in time to come down the stairway on schedule.

The policeman was watching Jerry. I turned and ran straight for the willows, bending low. I intended to dodge along the sandy shore of the river to the north wing of the clubhouse again. I prayed that no one had returned to the kitchen.

It was dark under the trees. Something blacker than a shadow loomed before me. Arms like steel clamped around me, pinioned my hands to my sides.

This was no policeman. It was a giant of a man, smelling of bad liquor. I tried to wrench loose, but he was too strong and I dared not scuffle to make a noise.

Suddenly one of his arms drew back. There was a swishing sound and then a blinding light.

I awoke to find my head throbbing as though it had been split. I was looking up at the starlit sky, lying on my back on hard boards. My whole bed swayed. It was a small boat. Water splashed and gurgled gently against the sides.

When I tried to move I found that my wrists were tied together under me. There was a choking gag in my mouth. I closed my eyes and lapsed into unconsciousness again.

How many minutes later it was before I opened my eyes a second time I had no way of knowing. I was still in the boat. There sounded the slow swish and splash of a muffled oar. I could not see the boatman, who apparently was seated behind my head, paddling the boat like a canoe. At my feet—I could just raise my head enough to see them—were several sacks bulging oddly.

The sides of the boat were so high that I could see nothing of the shore, but presently from ahead I noticed a dark shape looming up as we approached it. Gradually it took the form of a roof. We were drifting up to some old building. It looked like a deserted warehouse standing high on piles beside the river. Not a light shone from it anywhere.

I scarcely had time to notice that there were branches of trees hanging over the building, when we glided under the wharf or pier. Momentarily I saw the dim outline of piles rising around us, then all melted into the pitch darkness.

The boatman must have known the course well, or perhaps he was guided by a light I could not see. The steady splash of the muffled oar continued. Twice the boat bumped into something, veered off and continued. The jar and accompanying shiver of the boat sent the pain shooting through my head again.

At last a dim glow shone up ahead and a moment later a lantern came into sight, hanging from a beam overhead. I had to shut my eyes until they became accustomed to the light. The boat stopped. Feet scraped near my head and the whole craft rocked dizzily as the boatman stepped out on an invisible landing.

He looked to be about 20 feet tall as he stood over me. The lantern was above his head, and in the shadow of his hat I could not make out his face or much about him. Even his size was distorted. Looking up at him this way from a position several inches below his feet, he was all out of proportion.

Unexpectedly he reached up and took down the lantern, turning his back to me as he blew it out.

I felt myself lifted from the boat by arms that seemed to have Herculean strength. I am no featherweight.

My captor set me on my feet and roughly pushing from behind, started me walking through the darkness. I had no way of telling at what moment I might step off into a hole or trap of some sort, but the floor continued level and smooth underfoot.

This Easter's Softer Coiffures Will Reinstate the Hairbrush

Soft curls at the neckline and sides of the head, as shown here, are what the 1940 coiffure vogue demands. Notice the straight back hair.

The longer bob (now called the "glamour bob") still is a favorite with many girls—and so are the bows, worn all around the clock.

Undulating Waves and Big Curls Call for Lots of Care

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

New tricks in the 1940 coiffure will put your hair brush back in lead position on your dressing table.

When you go forth in your gay Easter hat, you'll insist on a tailored hair-do. And brushing not only will insure the smoothness but also the softness of your hair.

The Abundant Look

Here are some new hair tricks:

1—Your hairline must show at the forehead, temples and in front of the ears as the hair is brushed up and back.

2—Undulating waves, big curls or rolls will pull your hair upward generally, especially over the ears, above the forehead and at the neckline. No more tight ringlets. Your hair should look abundant.

3—Your hair will tend to be straight from crown backward to the neckline.

With these up-and-down trends in mind, I went to Lura de Gez, New York hair stylist, to talk about why hair gains luster and a healthy appearance from brushing. She reminded me that vigorous brushing stimulates circulation in your scalp. It strengthens hair roots, and gives a smooth lovely look to your coiffure which, this spring, particularly, should have the same softness that your tailored suit will have.

Some Brushing Rules

Her rules are: Use two firm brushes with flexible bristles. Bend forward from the waist and brush up from the neckline on both sides simultaneously, following the hairline around your head. The top of your head should get the same kind of upward strokes, strokes that tug gently at your scalp. Fifty times night and morning ought to be your rule, but ten times daily will do more good than 50 times once a week.

To get rid of face powder at the hairline—to give yourself assurance of well-groomed hair—brush your hair upward from the hairline about your face just before you don your Easter hat.

The French horn was invented in Italy, not France. The instrument contains between 16 and 23 feet of brass tube, and is one of the most difficult wind instruments to play.

Small birds must have larger wings, in proportion to body weight, than large birds, and they must flap them faster.

The Mason and Dixon line has been found by modern surveyors, to be as much as 400 feet from its correct location; but to correct it would necessitate the changing of other boundaries throughout the United States.

GOP Gubernatorial Candidates Hit Use of Taxes for Political Machine

Alderson, W Va., March 14 (AP)—The state's highway system, the election of school boards, and the use of taxes "for the building of political machines" were catigated tonight by two Republican gubernatorial aspirants who shared the same speaker's stand.

Mayor D. Boone Dawson of Charleston and Circuit Judge Lewis H. Miller of Ripley both assailed what they said were practices now in use under the present Democratic state administration.

They addressed Young Republicans from Greenbrier, Monroe and Summers counties.

Dawson, advocating non-partisan election of school board members, said in a prepared address the present sytem makes "a great many of our teachers feel that their employment is political employment and that its length is determined by the length of time the political party that first employed them continues to stay in power."

Of roads, Miller declared:

"Before there is greater hope for expansion of the road program in West Virginia, we must reduce our indebtedness and other charges and put our system upon a sounder policy of 'pay as you go.' This will take time — it means a long range program, but it will be sound and we will not be in debt for it."

The alternative, said Miller, is that "we shall soon find ourselves in debt too much to ever maintain the system of roads we have already built."

No one complains, said Dawson, about the use of tax money for public improvements and other useful things.

"But," he added, "they have complained at times x x x as to taxes that were paid for the building up of political machines, taxes that were used not to keep step with our progress, but to strengthen the political power of some person who was in office. x x x

"I am convinced that the people of West Virginia are definitely in favor of a program that says how much of our taxes are to be used for public improvements and how much for political agrandizement."

Mrs. Johnson Dies; Oldest Resident Of Tucker County

Life of 'Aunt Nancy' Spanned Administrations of 24 Presidents

Parsons W. Va., March 14—Mrs. Nancy Johnson, probably the oldest resident of the county, died this morning at 4 o'clock at the home of her son, James Johnson, near Montrose, with whom she had resided for a number of years. She was 98.

Mrs. Johnson had been ill for more than a year.

She was born in Barbour county Nov. 14, 1841, a daughter of Samuel and Betsy Carpenter Gainer. Her husband, Richard Johnson, and three sons, Troy, John and Orvilla, preceded her in death.

Surviving are four sons, Orlando Johnson and Raymond Johnson of Phillipi; Worth, of Parsons, and James, of Montrose. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Ella Moore of Meadowville, who is 96 years of age, and Mrs. Louverna Ferguson of Parsons, who is about 88 years of age. Two granddaughters, Mrs. Stark Wilmoth and Mrs. John Teets, reside in Elkins.

Mrs. Johnson was the aunt of former State Senator Herman G. Johnson and Mrs. A. B. Vannoy, of Elkins.

"Aunt Nancy", as she was affectionately known to her large number of friends, was descended from a pioneer family which migrated into what is now Barbour county about 1790.

She had witnessed the remarkable development which has taken place from pioneer days to the present period and has passed through administrations of twenty-four of the thirty-two presidents of the United States—from William Henry Harrison to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

She had seen the development of the automobile, the telegraph and telephone, the airplane, and many of the inventions which make present-day living so different from conditions which prevailed in her early life.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, but services will be held in Central Chapel, near Meadowville, Friday.

The Parsons Model Airplane Club met yesterday and held an election of officers. The officers elected were: President, William Repair; vice-president, Fred Chapman; secretary, Junior Simmons; treasurer, Richard Davis; and reporter, Calvin Bennett. The club meets each Wednesday in the Parsons Grade school building. There were 34 members at the last meeting.

Trials Scheduled In Jail Scandal

Seventeen Prisoners and Turnkey Indicted at Sutton, W. Va.

Sutton, W. Va., March 14 (AP)—Additional indictments were returned today against eight of seventeen prisoners now awaiting trial on charges which grew out of a grand jury investigation of a "kangaroo court" in the Braxton county jail.

The new accusations were returned shortly after Circuit court officials announced the first trials on the original charges had been set for March 18.

Seven of the defendants earlier had been arraigned by Circuit Judge Jake Fisher, whose casual inquiry during a street meeting about facial injuries on John Dolan led to the grand jury probe last fall.

Dolon had been incarcerated for hunting on Sunday.

In indictments today, Ralph Brady, Laurence Drake, and Red Cash were jointly charged with conspiracy to rob and felonious assault. Scott Friend, Harley (Buck) King and Ed McLaughlin were named on a similar joint indictment, and McLaughlin and King were also accused with Orfa Jarvis, Friend and Curt Ellison, turnkey, with armed robbery.

Dolan, arrested and incarcerated for hunting on Sunday, and his companion, David Bails, each have filed $10,000 damage suits against Sheriff R. W. Brosius for injuries they contended they suffered at the hands of a county jail "kangaroo court."

The grand jury said in a resolution that the "kangaroo court" fined every new prisoner $2, taking the money by force or threat, and that Bradford Carpenter, one of the prisoners, possessed a key to the women's quarters and admitted other male inmates. The resoluton asked the dismissal of the turnkey, Curt Ellison.

Those arraigned included Carpenter, Icie Falls, H. B. Hensley, George Jarvis, Okey Bosley, Alva Stout and Lawrence Brady. Others are either serving terms in the state penitentiary or have furnished bond for their freedom.

The charges made by the grand jury ranged from adultery to conspiracy to kill and rob.

Mine Blast Probe Futile, Abandoned

Officials Give Up Hope of Finding Cause of Bartley Explosion

Charleston, W. Va., March 14 (AP)—Hope for determining the cause of the Bartley mine catastrophe in which ninety-one men were killed Jan. 10 was abandoned today by the State Mines Department and the active investigation closed.

Chief N. P. Rhinehart said the department would "keep its eyes open" indefinitely for clues but that "we've given up hope of finding the cause of the ignition of the explosion."

The department has accepted the verdict of the McDowell county coroner's jury which held that the explosion occurred in the main six heading before spreading to two other sections and that the blast was caused by methane gas ignited "from source or sources unknown."

A Federal Bureau of Mines report made public at Washington by Secretary Ickes said the explosion "probably" was caused by sparks from faulty electric equipment. A copy of the report was given the McDowell county coroner's jury at the request of Vice-President William Blizzard of United Mine Workers District 17, Charleston.

TO THE VOTERS OF WESTERNPORT, MD.

The municipal primary held Monday, March 11, to nominate a mayor and four commissioners for the town of Westernport, at which primary nine votes were cast for me for mayor, seems to have placed me in a false position before the Westernport people.

A few hours before the primary was held a sample ballot, bearing my name as a candidate for mayor, was circulated but this ballot was put out without my permission or authority. While duly appreciative of the complimentary vote cast for me, I wish to make it clear to the Westernport voters that I wa. not a candidate for mayor and did not permit my name to be placed before the convention.

Furthermore I shall under no circumstances be a candidate for mayor at the general election to be held Monday, March 25.

Signed:
J. Estel Kenny,
Westernport, Md.

European Situation Cools Ardor Of Stock Traders, Prices Lower

Activity Noted only in a Few Low-Priced Issues

New York, March 14 (AP) — Speculative ardor cooled in the stock market today as Wall Street still appeared confused over European possibilities involved in the Russian-Finnish peace.

Most hares finished a shade lower.

Aside from lively dealings in a few low-priced stocks, the session was comparatively sluggish. Transfers amounted to 661,880 shares compared with 625,790 the day before.

The Associated Press average of sixty issues was off .1 of a point at 50. The lengthy stalemate was exemplified by the fact this composite a month ago stood at 50.3 and a year ago at 51.4. Of 703 individual stocks changing hands on the day, 272 were down, 235 up and 196 were unchanged.

Douglas Aircraft and American Can, were down around a point each. Lesser declines were posted for U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Western Union, Sears Roebuck, Kennecott and U. S. Rubber.

Curtiss-Wright "A" was an exception among aviations, edging into new high ground for the year. Up also were Zenith Radio, Allied Chemical, American Smelting, and International Harvester.

In the Curb specialties were favored. Cities Service Power preferred jumped about 7 points on declaration of dividends. The turnover was about 132,500 shares against 148,000 yesterday.

Eight Utilities Ask Approval Of Big Merger

Multi-Million Dollar Deal Before Public Service Commission

Charleston, W. Va., March 14 (AP)—Eight utilities asked today for Public Service Commission approval of a multi-million-dollar merger involving natural gas operations in twenty-one West Virginia counties and three other states.

Four companies would be consolidated as the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and the properties of four others purchased to form the utilities empire, part of the Columbia System.

The Commission set the petition for hearing at 11 a. m. April 5.

The proposal calls for the formation of the Manufacturers Light and Heat from the old company of the same name, the Manufacturers Gas Company, the Pennsylvania Fuel Supply Company and the Greensboro Gas Company.

Properties of the Natural Gas Company of West Virginia, the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, Gettysburg Gas Corporation and Fayette County Gas Company would be obtained in exchange for capital stock.

All companies involved are subsidiaries of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation, and the petition said the consolidation will "result in better service."

"If authorized, operations could extend into Hancock, Harrison, Brooke, Ohio, Marshall, Wetzel, Tyler, Doddridge, Ritchie, Calhoun, Roane, Monongalia, Marion, Upshur, Lewis, Barbour, Randolph, Tucker, Preston, Grant and Mineral counties.

The new concern also would operate in Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York.

Capitalization of the three companies now operating in West Virginia, the Manufacturers Light and Heat, Natural Gas Company of West Virginia and the Cumberland and Allegheny, was listed as $25,-000,000, $2,997,200 and $2,000,000 respectively.

A similar move for approval has been made before the Public Utilities Commission in Pennsylvania.

Four hundred years ago Coronado, the Conquistador, ventured northward from Mexico seeking the fabled Cities of Cibola. The Southwest this year is celebrating the 400th anniversary of his exploration and an $80,000 museum is being constructed at the old Indian village in Tiguex, near Albuquerque, N. M., where Coronado and his soldiers spent their first winter. The skull and bones above were dug up during excavations for the museum. Diggers say it is almost impossible to excavate at the Tiguex site and not bring up skeletons, which they believe are those of Tiguex Indians.

Mayor Attacks His Opponent As 'Socialist'

Outlines His Ideas On Flood Control, Hits at 'Factions'

The term "Socialist" last night was hurled at Thomas S. Post, candidate for mayor, by Mayor Harry Irvine in a campaign speech.

"My opponent has issued a circular stating that he is a sincere believer in constitutional and democratic government and has no radical beliefs," the mayor said. "The statement is an abstract one and meaningless unless applied to concrete cases.

"Since the release of that statement, I have been asked on numerous occasions what my oppenent's politics were and I took the trouble to find out myself from the records of the Court House and I found that he was registered as a Socialist in 1932 and has never changed his affiliations up to now.

Up to the People

"Whether the people of this community are willing to accept the statement that a man who for years has adopted and advocated Socialism as a political system by being a member of the Socialist party, has no radical beliefs, I leave to you to determine for yourself," the mayor said.

Mayor Irvine also ploughed into Mr. Post's statement that he favors necessary city improvement by means of WPA and PWA work grants provided there is no "financial burden" on the city's part.

"Meaningless Statement"

"This is another meaningless statement," the mayor said. "Every public works project requires that the city find twenty-five percent of the cost thereof and that is the requirement of the Federal law. Every PWA project requires that the city shall finance forty-five percent of the cost thereof.

"That being true, any man who says he favors these things provided there is no financial burden, indicates either that he does not know what he is talking about or is holding forth a mere illusory promise in an utterly meaningless statement."

The statement that "there must be no increase in taxation in Cumberland," last night was interpreted as the keynote of the mayor's address over Station WTBO.

His at "Factions"

"At the outset," Mayor Irvine said, "I think it is proper to say that I wish to continue those policies inherited by me from Dr. Thomas W. Koon, as supplemented by myself, in an effort to prevent the government of Cumberland from falling into the hands of any particular faction or group of people, because I sincerely believe sound government is perpetuated only by having people in office who conscientiously try to represent the best interests of all the people and who do not fear the criticism of anger of groups or factions.

"I have served this city in various capacities over a long period of time and I feel with the experience gained therein, I am fully and ably qualified and can justly come before the voters of Cumberland and ask for their assistance at the polls on March 19.

Rapped WPA Slowness

Expressing himself on WPA, the mayor said, "I have criticized the rate of progress made on many of the WPA jobs in Cumberland and in doing so, I know that every observant citizen must have agreed with me.

"I firmly believe that under our modern social and economic condition, we must tide over worthy persons out of work by some type of public relief work. I also believe that the Works Progress Administration is as good a system for doing this as any other that can be found.

Criticizes WPA Loafing

"It is not the system of trying to help those out of employment which I have criticized, but I do criticize the loafing of men on these jobs and the system of distribution of these jobs because a taxpayer, through a condition over which he has no control, is denied the right to earn enough money to pay his taxes and save his small home.

"This was further evidenced on Tuesday, March 12, between the county commissioners and officials of the Works Progress Administration, relating to the distribution of the work on the Savage River Dam."

The mayor declared once again that in view of the fact that Cumberland is the largest taxpaying unit in Allegany county, city workers should be entitled to jobs on the dam project.

Turning to the subject of flood control, Mayor Irvine made a definite statement on what he thinks should be done.

The basic principle of flood protection, he said, was the Kimball plan.

The mayor urged that the government take the $700,000 allotted for flood control in Cumberland, and, with the aid of a city-sponsored WPA project, "widen and dredge the Potomac river from the river dam down, thereby giving the flood waters a place to go instead of backing up in the city of Cumberland."

This, the mayor said, "would make an ideal WPA project for at least a few years."

Comments on Labor Split

Commenting on labor, Mayor Irvine said he had "learned the labor movement under such men and the policies they advocated, as the late Samuel Gompers, James Duncan, Johnny Mitchel, Andy Furuithe and Michael Tighe, all of whom built the labor movement on a sound foundation."

Mayor Irvine said the movement founded by the American Federation of Labor had stood the test of time until a few years ago when the radical element withdrew and formed a union of their own.

Won't Be Browbeaten

"From that time to the present, bitter warfare has resulted which is conductive to no good for the movement in general," the mayor said.

Concluding, the mayor stated "as an official of this city, I have at all times tried and done my best to be just and fair to all. I have allowed no clique or faction to browbeat or coerce me in making up my mind what I deemed was for the best interest of everyone concerned."

Election Board Climbs Voting Machine Fence

There is apparently little or no chance of installation of voting machines in Allegany county before the fall elections, a survey showed yesterday.

The three members of the Board of Election Supervisors were very non-committal on the subject. They wouldn't say they were for the machines; nor would they say they were against them.

Members of the board of the county commissioners also sat on the fence. They all said it was a matter for the election board to decide.

Chairman J. Estel Kenny of the election board declined to make any comment whatever on the matter.

His fellow-Democrat, Harold A. Powell, said he hadn't given the matter much attention, although he, with the other members of the board, had talked to the representative of one voting machine firm.

Need To Study Further

Mr. Powell said he couldn't make up his mind on the subject until he had studied it more thoroughly. He indicated there was little chance of any action being taken on the question in time for the fall elections.

The Republican minority member of the board, Stanley R. Hamilton, largely echoed Mr. Powell's sentiments. He said, too, he wasn't familiar enough with the proposition to make a definite statement.

He described the machines, however, as "wonderful things."

The board will probably go into the matter more thoroughly, he stated, at a forthcoming meeting when a representative of the company now displaying a machine here furnishes more detailed information.

Of the county commissioners, who haven't first say in the matter, President Simeon W. Green made the longest statement. James Holmes said he would take his stand on the question if and when the election board presented it to the commissioners.

Decision Put Off

Patrick J. "Derby" Stakem, lone Democrat on the county governing board, was likewise non-committal.

"I'll announce my position when the question comes up," he said, refusing to be drawn into any discussion of the proposal.

President Green was not averse to discussing the proposition, although he also said he would decide definitely when the question comes before the commissioners.

"The commissioners are in a peculiar position," Mr. Green began. "We have to raise the money to buy the machines if the election board asks for them.

"But the question of installing them is up to the election supervisors, and I'm not going to tell them how to run their business."

Still Needs Convincing

Asked his personal opinion of the machines and the savings they would reportedly effect in election expenses, the board president said, "I haven't definitely made up my mind yet."

"They'll have to convince me it would be advantageous in every respect.

"There is a possibility, it seems, of saving the taxpayers a few dollars. But I'm opposed to machines' taking people's jobs, leaving those people on the streets watching the machines work.

"And machines can't buy anything.

Jobs vs. Machines

"There may be some savings to the taxpayers, but it would deprive other taxpayers of jobs and wages," he stated, referring to the precinct workers it would displace.

"I'll admit it would speed the returns, and there would be less mistakes," he continued, "but there's that other side of it to consider."

Then, expressing skepticism over the figures showing the savings the machines would bring if installed, he commented, "Figures don't lie, but liars do figure."

"At any rate," he concluded, "it's not our baby. It's up to the election board."

The commissioners have before them now the election board budget for the year, calling for increased expenses resulting from the proposed creation of six new voting places.

The occasion is the first regular meeting of the newly-organized Cumberland Pilots Club, which will vote tonight on a constitution and by-laws.

Manager of WTBO Misquoted in News, He Explains

Frank V. Becker, president and general manager of the Associated Broadcasting Company, owner of WTBO, said yesterday that his talk at Wednesday's luncheon of the Lion's club was misinterpreted and that he was misquoted in The News account of his speech.

Mr. Becker had no intention of giving the impression that the radio industry is "harassed" by governmental regulations, he said, and he did not tell the Lions that radio is "the most legislated and regulated industry."

Neither, explains Mr. Becker, did he say that radio is one of "the most taxed and censored industries."

The News regrets any inaccuracies in its report, which was received from a member of the Lions club who took notes on the talk.

Mr. Becker explained yesterday that in view of his many years of experience in all phases of radio work " my appreciation of the absolute necessity of governmental regulation of the broadcast industry in all its phases is extremely strong in my mind."

Among the remarks made by Mr. Becker at the luncheon which may have been misunderstood were these:

"The structure around which the Federal Communications Commission rules and regulations are built is 'Public Interest, Convenience, and Necessity' and a broadcast station is under very strict supervision in conducting its business so that these interests are fulfilled.

"Advertising being the source of revenue for the broadcast industry in general, the operation is also subject to the Federal Trade Commission, postal laws, food and drug act, Federal Alcoholic Administration, etc.. . . .Advertising copy that goes over the air is subject to the scrutiny of the FTC.

"What goes on the air can't be retracted — thousands of listeners are ready to criticize and we are always subject to suits of libel or more strictly slander or for offending good taste, etc. Therefore, a station management must observe the strictest censorship of all programs that go out on the air. . . ."

(Here the reference is to self-censorship, and not a direct government censorship.)

Skiing Prospects Good as Snow Follows Sleet

Icy winds blew across the mountains to the west last night, following an all-day storm that first covered the mountains with sleet and then with an inch or more of new snow.

At 10 p. m. last night the thermometer had dropped to twenty-two degrees on Big Savage mountain, the new snow had stopped, and the wind had begun to blow.

Trees loaded with ice cracked and crackled in the wind.

Ski Prospects Bright

Prospects were bright for weekend skiing at New Germany. Rain fell during most of yesterday at New Germany, freezing an icy crust on the old snow. But snow started falling around 4 p. m., and at 9 p. m. there was more than an inch of new snow covering the crust, it was reported by M. E. Martin, superintendent of the state forest.

The thermometer was falling at New Germany last night, and was down to 28 at 9 p. m., Mr. Martin reported.

There is plenty of snow for skiing on most parts of the slope and on the lower part of the Big Run trail, Mr. Martin reported.

More Snow Forecast

The U. S. weather forecast calls for "light snow" in Western Maryland today.

In Cumberland, yesterday's weather was most disagreeable. A cold rain fell, coming down hard during the afternoon and turning to wet snow at night.

Roads were slippery, especially west of Grantsville. One motorist reported dozens of cars tied up on Uniontown Hill.

The temperature in Cumberland at midnight, according to the B. & O. dispatcher, was 30 degrees.

Elderly Brothers Crash When Auto Skids On Slippery Highway

One of two elderly brothers bound for Hagerstown was injured yesterday when their car skidded on the slippery highway eighteen miles east of Cumberland and slammed into a ditch.

James M. McNeal, 60, of Helvetia, W. Va., was cut about the face, but attaches at Allegany hospital say he will be able to continue his trip within several days.

Peter McNeal, 68, of Hagerstown, driver of the car, was examined at the hospital, but was not admitted. State Trooper Austin H. Bikle investigated the accident.

Catholic Oratory Contest Scheduled for Tonight

The Western Maryland finals of the annual archdiocesan oratorical contest sponsored by the Veteran Crusaders of the C. S. M. C. will be held tonight at 8:30 in SS. Peter and Paul hall, on Fayette street.

Speakers who will compete for a cash award and the right to represent Western Maryland in the finals at Baltimore on March 31 are Miss Barbara Fricker, L'Aiglon unit; T. Lloyd Niland, Merici unit; and Miss Helen Hughes, Gallitzin unit.

The committee in charge is Miss Joan Kerr, Miss Angela Laing, and Miss Thekla D. Price.

Subject for the orations is, "Personal Views on Vocations to the Priesthood, Brotherhood, and Sisterhood."

Clarksburg Fugitive Returned to W. Va.

Hobert Sutton, 21, of Clarksburg, W. Va., yesterday was released from the city jail to West Virginia State Trooper E. C. Guthrie, who took him to Clarksburg to face a charge of grand larceny.

Sutton was sleeping Monday night in the Cumberland jail when Maryland State Police broadcast a "pickup" on him at the request of West Virginia authorities.

Professor To Talk Before WPA Union

A series of three mass meetings, the first tonight at 8 p. m. at Rubber Workers Hall, will be held by Cumberland Local W2378, of the Workers Alliance, a WPA union.

Dr. Robert T. Kerlin, organizer of the new labor school here, will address the members of the audience tonight. All members of trades unions have been invited to attend.

Another purpose of the meeting is to instruct WPA workers regarding a program contemplated for "National End Unemployment Day" scheduled for March 23.

Two other meetings scheduled by the Alliance will be held March 22 and March 29.

21st Birthday Of Legion Post Celebrated

Ex-Soldiers Cut Handsome Cake, Hold Dance

The ladies of the Legion last night played host to the members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 at the organization's "twenty-first" birthday party.

Seventy-five couples danced to the music of Marty Flynn's Society Ramblers at the attractively decorated post headquarters on Harrison street.

Later, a buffet luncheon was served and Harry G. Spiker, post commander, and Mrs. Pearl Allen, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, cut a giant birthday cake.

Legion officials who made short talks commemorating the growth and development of the Cumberland post were Mrs. Allen, Mr. Spiker, Robert C. Bowers, past commonder, and Wesley H. Abrams, vice-commander of Mountain District.

Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 was formed in July, 1919, with Garland Powell as its first commander. Other commanders have been: 1919, Garland Powell; 1920, William A. Huster; 1921, Dr. Arthur P. Citizen Fights in Court For Right To Vote Here

Despite the quietness of the city election campaign, one Cumberland citizen wants to vote so much Tuesday he went to court to win the right.

He was Borden LaRue, of 106 Park street, who yesterday obtained a writ of mandamus in Circuit court to compel election officials to place his name on the registry book of Precinct 1 of Ward 5.

LaRue's petition, docketed by Attorneys J. Hodge Smith and William R. Carscaden, said he sought to register on the last registration day, Feb. 26.

But Milton U. Norris and Mrs. Lille Teal Griffin refused to permit him to register, the suit went on, "giving as their only reason . . . the fact that he had not declared his intention to vote in the city of Cumberland one year prior to his application for registration."

A statement signed by the two officials accompanied the petition, admitting the facts and consenting to the passage of a decree correcting the error.

(Mrs. Griffin, wife of Joseph H. Griffin, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, said last night that while she signed the court paper in order to get the matter straightened out, she was not at fault.

Mr. Norris challenged LaRue's right to register, she explained, while she believed he was entitled to have his name on the books. They tried to contract Edward J. Ryan, attorney to the board of election supervisors, she went on, but couldn't reach him for an opinion.

(Finally, Mrs. Griffin stated, LaRue was turned down in the absence of authoritative information).

LaRue, the petition showed, had lived in Cumberland since September, 1938. While living in Westernport, he had declared his intentions of becoming a Maryland citizen Nov. 1, 1937, according to the petition.

This declaration is the only one necessary; the law does not require a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the city.

The order directing that LaRue's name be put on the registry book was signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster, who noted that it was amitted "without authority and by inadvertence."

Kimble Bitterly Denies Charges He's Communist

Says Country Needs More Jobs Most, Also Labor Peace

Peace in the labor field and jobs for the unemployed were stressed as essential needs of the nation in an address delivered by State Senator Robert B. Kimble at a meeting of the Sixth District Republican Club last night at Knights of Malta hall, Prospect Square.

The meeting was one of the largest held for some time by the club.

A delegation from the Frostburg Young Men's Republican Club was on hand, together with party members from other parts of the county, as well as the local district.

Fred B. Driscoll, president, introduced several speakers in addition to Kimble, including Harry Eisel, past president of the Frostburg club; William R. E. King, who discussed registration plans; Joseph Grimm, of the Frostburg club, and William L. Geppert, who discussed campaign prospects.

Denounces Red Reports

Kimble took occasion to denounce reports being circulated that he is a radical and that he is a Communist.

The latter charge he bitterly denied, pointing to the fact that he was author of a resolution passed by the Maryland General Assembly before the creation of the Dies Committee, asking Congress to support Senator Reynolds, of North Carolina, when he was pleading for investigation of Communist activities in the country.

Recovery will never come in this county, Kimble declared, until the 11,000,000 to 12,000,000 unemployed are given a chance to go back to work, and the young people who are coming out of the schools and colleges have opportunity to do something useful and productive.

In meeting both these problems, the New Deal has utterly failed, he said.

Cure for Strikes

We can prevent a major part of our industrial disputes, Kimble stated, by developing a federal department of conciliation to settle them prior to a strike or a lock-out on the basis of the principle behind the National Labor Relations Act.

Unsound experiments in agricultural regimentation are slowly ruining the farmer, Kimble asserted.

The present Social Security Act, "is the most vicious fraud ever perpetrated on the American people," Kimble said.

"People don't want handouts, but a decent chance to work."

"Until they get it, the nation will never see a return to prosperity."

There should be a restoration of the free representative form of government in all government work projects, the speaker asserted. They should not be left to executive authority and whim. Appropriations should be specific, and Congress should see that the money is spent accordingly.

Small Business Key to Prosperity

There must be some consideration for the small business man of the country, Kimble said.

They number 1,700,000, each employing one to 500 workers, and unless they are given a chance to get along, national prosperity cannot result.

The Monroe doctrine is a sufficient answer to those who would drag us into foreign wars, the speaker declared. If it is to prevent European nations from meddling in the Western Hemisphere, it should also work to prevent our meddling in the affairs of Europe.

Following the talk, a social session was held at which sandwiches and refreshments were served.
